

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTION.

The researches for this work have extended over a period of more than twenty years, conducted under adverse circumstances; one of which has been remoteness from the old family homes, in Massachusetts and Maine, where the records and information necessary for the history were to be principally found. The writer has never had the pleasure to visit Ipswich, Massachusetts, the cradle of the family in America; had this privilege been accorded, no doubt this book would have been more full, complete and accurate; but his investigations have been conducted largely through an extensive correspondence; with the inspection of such books and copies of records as could be secured; aided by the testimony of living witnesses.

About the year 1867, he procured from his grandfather, Isaac S. Andrews, then 79 years old, a man of remarkable memory, who was well acquainted with his kinsmen in Massachusetts and Maine, an account of the family history, as far back as his grandfather, Solomon Andrews. Except for this information, so timely preserved, it would have been more difficult to connect the relationship back to the first settlers, and perhaps this book would never have been written.

The identification of members of the family by a living witness, back to about the year 1750, has been of priceless value in establishing the Family Genealogy.

Until within the last few years, little has been published on this branch of the family. No connected Genealogy of this family has been published prior to this work.

The Andrews Memorial, published in 1872, barely mentions Robert Andros, of Ipswich, 1635, and his children.

General Christopher C. Andrews, of St. Paul, has published some disconnected extracts from the records of Ipswich and Salem, in the Maine Historical and Genealogical Recorder in 1886-8. The writer had never seen these papers until 1889, but had procured similar information from the same records, though not so full.

We desire to acknowledge valuable assistance, by information furnished for this work; by General C. C. Andrews, above; S. M. Watson, Esq., editor of the Maine Historical and Genealogical Recorder, of Portland, Maine; from the Abraham Ham-matt Papers; the Ipswich Antiquarian Papers, by Augustine Caldwell, Esq., and Arthur C. Dowe, Esq., of Ipswich; the Andrews Memorial, by Rev. Alfred Andrews; Savage's Genealogical Dictionary; the Stearns Genealogy, by Dr. Solomon S. Stearns, of Washington D. C.; the Amos Otis Papers; the Portland Transcript; and from the many friends who have kindly furnished family records, etc.

It is with hesitation that we present these pages to our kins-folks, not unmindful that they probably contain some unavoidable errors, and other imperfections.

It has been prepared chiefly during the hours taken from busy professional cares and duties.

We trust it will assist in preserving and perpetuating the history of Robert Andrews and his descendants, and make the family better acquainted, one with the other; hoping that other hands may improve and complete what is here presented.

The writer has acquired many pleasant acquaintances during the preparation of the history, and now submits the results of his labors for the favorable inspection of the family.

With kindest regards,

H. F. ANDREWS.

AUDUBON, IOWA, November, 1890.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME.

Andrews is a Christian name. The English word Andrew, and its equivalents in other languages has been used as a name for members of the human family from the time of remote antiquity.

The Greek word Ἀνδρᾱ, pronounced with the long sound of the last a, Anar, signifies a man, in the most comprehensive sense.

The Latin word Andreas, signifies a man, or manly, or like a man.

The English word Andrew means the same.

It was the name of the first disciple of Jesus. One commentator suggests, that probably the apostle had also a Hebrew name, and that the name Andrew was given to characterize his manly spirit, as his brother, whose Hebrew name was Simon, was called Peter, the rock. Perhaps this was about the earliest use to be found in history, of the word as the name of an individual. Because of the fact that it was the name of so distinguished and illustrious a personage in the annals of Christian history, it is not improbable, but quite natural for the believers and followers of Christ and his apostles to adopt and continue this name; the same as at present people name their children after noted and illustrious persons. The home of Andrew was at Bethsaida, in Gallilee, then a Roman province.

It is supposed that after the Crucifixion, this apostle preached in Scythia, Greece and Epirus, and finally suffered martyrdom at Patræ in Achaia, A. D. 62 or 70, on a cross called St. Andrew's Cross, formed thus: ×

St. Andrew, is the patron Saint of Scotland, and is also held in great veneration in Russia as the apostle who according to tradition first preached Christianity in that country. In both countries there is an order of Knighthood named in his honor.

If these traditions are based upon facts, there were opportunities to spread and perpetuate the name. Communication between the Jewish provinces and Rome, at that period, would naturally take the name to the latter place; and it would become coined into the Latin language; even if it had not been already borrowed from the Greek; just as we coin new words into our language to-day. Names or nouns are words most readily borrowed.

It was the most natural thing for the early Christians to preserve the names of their saints; their first teachers and preachers; their authorities in doctrinal matter; they were land marks, so to speak.

There are no acquirements more firmly impressed upon the different races of people, than their religious customs and usages.

It may have been considered a mark of distinction to bear the name of a martyred Christian. It may have been regarded a duty by the Church to perpetuate the names of its saints and martyrs, by bestowing them upon living individuals. The signification of the name itself, alone, renders it peculiarly appropriate as a name for man. When the name became established once as a familiar one with the Romans, it naturally spread through Christendom, to every place where the Roman arms were victorious; or where the Christian religion was established, and so we find it all over Europe; Andrea in Italy; Andreas in Germany; Andre and Andrieux in France; Andres in Spain; and Andrew with its various terminations and corruptions in England.

In England it is a very old as well as common name; probably carried there by the Romans, Five hundred years of Roman rule was sufficient to permanently fix the name there.

The English books on Heraldry give a full description of many Coats of Arms of the different branches of the family.

Like many other old English names, the orthography has been corrupted; there are various terminations which have as little signification as the Coats of Arms; the name is spelled variously, thus: Andrew, Andrews, Andrewes, Andros, Andross, Andrus, Andruss, Andras, Anders, Androse, Androwes, Androuse, Andores, &c., &c.

Antiquaries give little heed to the mere spelling of names; either by living individuals or as found in records; as evidence of relationship; other tests must be considered.

It is not uncommon to find known relatives at the present time who spell their names differently; Two hundred years ago and prior to that time there were no standards for English orthography; the people spelled very carelessly, each to please his fancy, any way and every way; many were then unable to read or write at all and trusted such matters to public scribes and to the parish officials; one clerk would spell the name in his peculiar manner, while the clerk in a neighboring town spelled it differently; long continuance in the same place by the same family, tended to the adoption of a form of the name peculiar to a given family of relatives, while the separation of relatives, exhibited frequently, a marked difference in the name.

In such ways the forms of the name have multiplied. It is a wonder that our names have been so well preserved.

EARLY SETTLEMENT IN AMERICA.

It is the purpose of this work to deal particularly with the Andrews family in America, and with the facts and circumstances surrounding their early settlement here. To understand the family history better, one should have a good knowledge of English and Colonial history of those times.

The greater number of people in this country named Andrews are of English origin.

We may safely date the settlement of the family among the early emigrants to Massachusetts Bay Colony about the year 1630; a brief survey of the history of this settlement will interest and assist us. In March, 1628, a company of six gentlemen in England, purchased from the Plymouth Company, the territory extending from a line three miles north of the Merrimack river; thence to a line three miles south of the Charles river; from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. These purchasers soon afterward conveyed an interest in their purchase to others, and the number of joint proprietors soon became much enlarged.

They assumed the title of "The Massachusetts Bay Company," and in a few days chose Matthew Cradock, a wealthy merchant of London, their governor and Thomas Gouge, also a London merchant, deputy governor.

In June 1628, John Endicott, a Puritan of the sternest type was sent over with a company of emigrants who landed at Salem (Naumkeag), and commenced the settlement of that ancient town.

Endicott was one of the original purchasers of the Plymouth Company and was appointed governor of the colony but not of the company; the governor and government of the latter, remained in England, and gave instructions for the government of the colony.

Mr. Roger Conant, with three others, had fixed their abode at Salem previously, but as he had not been sent there by the company, his settlement was not allowed to give date to the settlement of the town. March 4, 1626, a charter was obtained from King Charles I, incorporating them as the "Governor and Company of Massachusetts Bay in New England;" the stockholders to elect annually, a governor, deputy governor, and eighteen assistants, who were to administer the affairs of the colony in monthly meetings. Four great and general courts of the whole body of freemen, were to be held for the transaction of public affairs. Nothing was to be enacted contrary to the rights of Englishmen, but the supreme power resided with the company in England.

It was regarded as a patent for a trading corporation and no specific provision was made on the subject of religion. A large number of the proprietors were attached to the Church of England. Endicott having visited Plymouth, desired to establish an independent church and renounce the use of Liturgy.

He became involved in a dispute with two brothers named Browne, and who were among the original patentees, and who desired to have the services of the Church of England fully carried out in the colony. Endicott shipped them off to England as "factious and evil conditioned." The company reprimanded him for this stretch of authority, but the complaints of the Brownes were unheeded.

These matters took place during the troublesome times between Charles I, and the Parliament; and the acts of the Colonists with regard to Church discipline, undoubtedly escaped the careful scrutiny of the home government; again, the government was relieved from dissensions and disputes at home, between the non-conformists and the established Church by the removal of the Puritans; and for that reason ignored the wrangles among the colonists.

The English government did not expressly sanction or approve the actions of the colonists in religious affairs, but rather avoided acting on the subject.

It had been a difficult question for many years in England, to deal with; but the discipline of the Established Church was wilfully disregarded, and the Congregational Church, established at an early day in Mass. Bay Colony.

The Puritans were not all alike, nor of one mind on the subject of religious matters, except perhaps in their opposition to the Established church; there were factions among them.

The settlers of Mass. Bay Colony were a different type from the simon pure Puritan of the Plymouth Colony; Endicott is an example.

In July 1629, Governor Cradock proposed to the company to transfer the charter from England to the colony.—"to those who shall inhabit there"—which led to a very important increase in the number and distinction of the emigrants.

A meeting of the company was called August 28. to discuss the question of the removal, and on the next day, it was determined to be "the consent of the company that the government patent should be settled in New England."

At a court of the company on October 20, 1629, Mr. John Winthrop was elected governor, and John Humphrey was elected deputy governor, for New England.

At the last meeting of the company in England on board the Arabella, March 23, 1630, Mr. Thomas Dudley was elected deputy governor, in place of Mr. Humphrey, who had concluded not to go at that time.

As a result of these operations, seventeen emigrant ships with over one thousand passengers, left England for the colony, in 1630, of which fourteen sailed before June.

The principal persons were Sir Richard Saltonstall, Isaac Johnson, and his wife Lady Arabella, sister to the Earl of Lincoln, John Winthrop and Thomas Dudley. These embarked on the ship Arabella, named after the Lady Arabella Johnson.

The emigrants included many persons of high character, wealth and learning, among whom were four non-conformist ministers. It was by far the most important expedition that had ever left England for America.

More than two hundred of the emigrants, including Lady Johnson and her husband, died before December 1630, from hardships to which they were not innured.

Governor Winthrop was a noble example of the English gentleman; loyal, but firmly inclined to assert public liberty; attached by old association to the church, he desired to see it reformed upon what the Puritans deemed the pure basis of the scripture.

They arrived in the bay in June 1630, and found Endicott at Charlestown; where at first they contemplated forming a settlement. The opposite peninsula then in possession of a single occupant named Blackstone, attracted his attention; here Winthrop and his people began a settlement, named after the English town of Boston, in Lincolnshire, from which many of the emigrants came.

Other parties of emigrants as they continued to arrive settled at various points in the vicinity, and gave names to the towns and villages founded and settled by them.

Each settlement at once assumed that township authority, which forever since has formed so marked a feature in the political organization of New England. The people assembled in town meeting and voted taxes for local purposes, and chose three, five or seven of the principal inhabitants; at first under other names, but early known as "selectmen," who had the expenditure of the tax money, and the executive management of town affairs; a treasurer and clerk were also chosen, and a constable was soon added for the purpose of serving civil and criminal processes.

Each town constituted, in fact, a little republic, almost complete in itself.

About the time of the settlement of this colony, several members of the Andrews family in England, were men of distinction and occupied important positions in society, and in public affairs. It will be well to call attention to some of them as they were, to some extent, connected with colonial matters.

Mr. Richard Andrews, a merchant at the Mermaid, in Cheap-side, London, a "Godly man," who having lent £500 to Plymouth Colony in New England, gave it to the poor.

Winthrop says he gave many cattle by Mr. Humfry the deputy governor, and £544, by Mr. Peters, to Mass. Bay Colony.

He was an Alderman in London, and one of the associates of the Plymouth Company in 1626.

The reader is cautioned to observe the distinction between the terms company and colony; the latter was always in America, the former usually in England.

Richard Andrews was written to by the court in 1634.

In October 1637, a tract of land extending three miles up into the woods in the town of Scituate, Mass., was granted to Richard Andrews, Hartley, Shirley and Beauchamp.

Thomas Andrews was a member of the General Court of the "Governor and Colony of Mass. Bay in New England," in 1629, one year before the change of the charter to New England.

The court had two sessions that year, and he was one of the auditing committee. One writer suggests: "from which it is supposed, he was one who came over with Governor Winthrop and party." These facts alone hardly warrant the inference.

Thomas Andrews was a London merchant and Lord Mayor of London in the year 1640, and made Cotton Mather his chaplain. He is supposed to be a brother to Richard above mentioned. Are both the Thomas Andrews, above named identical?

Bradford says: "the colony of Massachusetts Bay would have failed, had it not been for the money and credit of the Andrews, of England in connection with Shirley.

William Andrews, was master of the ship Elizabeth, with passengers in 1634. William Andrews was master of the ship, John and Dorothy, from Ipswich, Eng. in 1637; and his son William Jr. was master of the ship, Rose from Yarmouth, England.

We should hardly do justice to the family history, if we omitted to refer to Bishop Lancelot Andrewes, D. D. and will quote from his biography:

LANCELOT ANDREWS, D. D., Bishop of Winchester, one of the most illustrious of the prelates of England, was born in 1555 in Thames street, Allhallows, Barking, London. His father Thomas, was of the ancient family of the Suffolk Andrewes; in his later years he became master of Trinity House.

Lancelot was sent while a mere child to the Cooper's Free School, Ratcliff, in the parish of Stepney. From this the youth passed to Merchant Taylor's School, then under the celebrated Richard Mulcaster. In 1571 he was entered at Pembroke College, Cambridge. He was here one of the first four scholars upon the foundation of Dr. Thomas Watts, successor of the venerable Nowell. Contemporaneously he was appointed to a scholarship in Jesus College, Oxford, at the request of the founder (Dr. Price), by Queen Elizabeth. In 1574-5, he took his degree of B. A. ; in 1576 he was chosen to a fellowship at his college; in 1578 he proceeded M. A. ; in 1580 he was ordained, and in the same year his name appears as junior treasurer; in 1581 he was senior treasurer, and on July 11 was incorporated M. A. at Oxford.

On passing M. A. he was appointed catechist in his college and read letters upon the Decalogue, afterward published causing a furor of interest far and near, as his first quaint biographer Isaacson tells. The notes of these lectures printed in 1642, authenticate themselves; later editions have been suspiciously enlarged, and otherwise altered for the worse.

The notes are historically valuable and important, inasmuch as with Bishops Jewell and Bilson, he teaches in them, that Christ is offered in a sacrament, that is, his offering represented and a memory of his passion celebrated.

Nothing can be more definite or emphatic than Andrewes' repudiation of a real external sacrifice in the bread and wine.

From the university Andrewes went into the North by invitation of Henry Hastings, Earl of Huntingdon, lord president of the North. In 1585 he is again found at Cambridge taking his degree of B. D. In 1588 he succeeded Crowley in the vicarage of St. Giles, Cripplegate. Here he delivered his most penetrative and striking sermons on the Temptation in the wilderness, and the Lord's Prayer—the former published in 1592, the latter in 1611. In a great sermon on April 10, Easter week, 1588, he most effectively, and with burning eloquence, vindicated the Protestantism of the Church of England against the Romanists. It sounds oddly to have "Mr. Calvin" adduced herein and elsewhere as a new writer, with lavish praise and affection. Passing other ecclesiastical advancements, Andrewes was preferred by Grindal, at the suit of Walsingham, to the prebendary stall of St. Pancras in St. Paul's, London, in 1589.

The prebendary had "the courage of his opinions," for Sir John Harington records that Sir Francis Walsingham his patron, having laboured to get him to maintain certain points of ultra-Puritanism, he refused, having, as the garrulous knight, in his State of the Church of England, cunningly remarks, "too much of the Arctos in him to be scared with a councillor's frown or blown aside with his breath," and accordingly answered him plainly, that "they were not only against his learning, but his conscience." On September 6, 1589, he succeeded Fulke as master of his own college of Pembroke, being at the time, one of the chaplains of Archbishop Whitgift. His mastership of Pembroke was a success in every way. In 1589-90, as one of the twelve chaplains of the queen, he preached before her, a singularly outspoken sermon (March 4, 1590). In this year, on October 13, he preached his introductory lecture at St. Paul's upon undertaking to comment upon the first four chapters of Genesis. These form part of the Orphan Lectures, of the folio of 1657, than which there is no richer contribution to the theological literature of England, notwithstanding the imperfection of the notes in some cases. He was an incessant worker as well as preacher. He delighted to move among the people, and yet found time to meet with a society of antiquaries, whereof Raleigh, Sidney, Burleigh, Arundel, the Herberts, Saville, Stow, and Camden, were members. What by his often preaching testifies Isaacson, at St Gile's, and his no less often reading in St Paul's, he became so infirm that his friends despaired of his life. His charities were lavish, and yet discriminative.

The dearth of 1594 exhibits him as another Joseph in his care for the afflicted and poor of "the Israel of God." In 1595 appeared The Lambeth Articles, a landmark in our national church history. Andrewes adopted the doctrine of St Augustine as modified by Aquinas. Philosophically, as well as theologically, his interpretations of these deep things remain a permanent advance in theological-metaphysical thought. In 1598 he declined offers of the two bishoprics of Ely and Salisbury, his "nolo episcopari" resting on an intended alienation of the lands attached to these sees. On Nov. 23, 1600, was preached at Whitehall his memorable sermon on Justification, around which surged a controversy that is even now unspent. The preacher maintained the evangelical view as opposed to the sacerdotal.

On July 4, 1691, he was appointed Dean of Westminster, and his sedulousness over the renowned school is magnified by Bishop Hacket in his Life of Archbishop Williams. On July 25, 1603, Andrewes assisted at the coronation of James I. In 1604 he took part in the Hampton Court Conference, and better service, was one of the committee to whom we owe our authorised version of Holy Scripture. The Dean frequently preached before the king, and his majesty's own learning, given him by George Buchanan, made him a sympathetic hearer.

Many of these sermons are memorable from their results and place in our ecclesiastical history. In 1605 he was appointed, after a third declinature, bishop of Chichester. In 1609 he published his Tortura Torti, in answer to Bellarmine's Matthæus Tortus. This work is one of many born of the gunpowder plot and related controversies. It is packed full of learning, and yet the argument moves freely. Nowhere does Andrewes' scholarship cumber him. It is as a coat of mail, strong but mobile. In this same year he was transferred from Chichester to Ely. His studiousness here was as intent as before. He again assailed Bellarmine in his Responsio ad Apologiam, a treatise never answered. From 1611 to 1618 Andrewes is to be traced as a preacher and controversialist in season and out of season. In 1617 he attended the king to Scotland. In 1618 he was translated to the see of Winchester. In this year he proceeded to the Synod of Dort. Upon his return he became in word and deed a model bishop, while in every prominent ecclesiastical event of the period he is seen in the front, but ever walking in all beauty of modesty and benignity. His benefactions were unprecedented. His learning made him the equal friend of Grotious, and of the foremost contemporary scholars.

His preaching was unique for its combined rhetorical splendor and scholarly richness, and yet we feel that the printed page poorly represents the preaching. His piety was that of an ancient saint, semi-ascetic and unearthly in its self-denial, but rooted in a deep and glowing love for his Lord. No shadow rests on his beautiful and holy life. He died Sept. 25, 1626, and the leaders in church and state mourned for him as for a father. [Encyclopædia Britannica.]

Walter records this of him; Neal, bishop of Durham, and bishop Andrewes were standing together behind the king's chair at dinner, when king James turned to them and said "My lords, can not I take my subjects' money when I want it without all this formality in parliament?" bishop Neal readily answered, "God forbid, sire, but you should, you are the breath of our nostrils." The king then turned to bishop Andrewes; "Well, my lord, and what say you?" "Sir," said Andrewes, "I have no skill to judge of parliamentary cases." The king answered, "No put offs, my lord, answer me immediately." "Then sir," said he, "I think it lawful for you to take my brother Neal's money, for he offers it."

King James had such a veneration for this excellent prelate that he refrained from all levity in his presence. He was made a privy councilor by king James I, and was in no less esteem with king Charles I. His was a life of prayer, a great portion of five hours every day was spent in the exercise of devotion.

in his last sickness he continued, while awake, to pray audibly, till his strength failed; and then by lifting his eyes, he showed that he still prayed. He was a patron of learning, being master of Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Chaldee, Syriac, and Arabic, beside fifteen modern languages. He had brothers, Thomas, and Nicholas. — [Andrews Memorial.]

This great man lived in the reigns of three sovereigns of England; queen Elizabeth, and kings James I, and Charles I, with whom he was personally acquainted. He died only two years before the organization of the Mass. Bay Company. The subject of colonization had been agitated for years prior to that time. It is very probable that one of his charitable nature would have been actively interested in the subject, which may have influenced his kindred to emigrate to America.

Another member of the family, who figured prominently in colonial history, at a little later period, was Sir Edmund Andrews; born in London in 1637. His father was an officer of the royal household, and accompanied the royal family of Charles II, into exile. He distinguished himself in the war with the Dutch, in 1672, and appointed a major under Prince Rupert. He was knighted by king Charles I, in 1678; was governor of New York from 1674 to 1682. He was appointed governor of the New England colonies, by king James II, in 1686, and attempted to consolidate the colonies of New England into one royal province. He arrived at Boston in December 1686, with a royal frigate and two companies of troops to enforce his authority; but his acts of tyranny aroused the indignation of the people to that extent, that he was deposed by them in 1689, and sent back to England. He was governor of Virginia from 1692 to 1698, and died in 1714. His obituary notice gives his name Andrews, and speaks in high terms of his honors, and career. Americans have been taught to regard him as a tyrant, his government trusted him as a faithful public officer. No doubt from his stand-point, he sought to perform his duty to his country, and sovereign, honorably and conscientiously. His moral character was not assailed.

From what has been already indicated, it will be seen readily that the Andrews of England, were in positions to be influential with the government of the mother country, at and about the time of the settlement of this colony; this being true, probably induced many of the family to emigrate there early in its settlement; and we find many of the name in the records of the colony at that time.

Robert Andrew, and wife Grace, settled at Boxford, Mass., in 1630, and had children; John and Robert.

William Andrews, made free at Boston, Mar. 4, 1633. His name appears on the record of the General Court as constable.

Thomas Andrews, of Dorchester, wife Ann, had three acres of land granted him by the town, near his house, in 1634; his son Thomas, baptised June 23, 1639.

Robert Andrews, was at Chebacco, in Ipswich, 1635; wife Elizabeth; children, Alice, Rebecca, John, and Thomas; and nephews, John, Thomas, and Robert Burnham; was an inn-keeper.

Samuell Andrews, aged 37, and wife Jane, aged 30, child Jane, aged 3, and child Elizabeth, aged 2, entered their names and were examined at the custom house at Ipswich, Eng. for passage in the ship Increase, for New England, 1635. He settled at Saco, Me., and died the second year after his arrival.

His widow married Arthur Mackworth, probably his second wife; he had a dwelling on Falmouth Foreside,—Portland Me.

James Andrews, son of Samuell above, was born at Saco, and removed with his mother upon her second marriage, to Falmouth.

He married Sarah, daughter of Michael Mitton, and grand-daughter of George Cleaves, one of the first owners of Cushings' Island, Portland. He had children, Elisha, who was a lieutenant as early as 1689 under Church in his campaign against the eastern indians, and probably sons, James and Joshua, who died before their father. James Andrews, came into possession of Cushings' Island, then known as Andrews' Island, as the dowry of his wife, and held it from 1667 until 1698.

The deposition of James Ross, aged about seventy years, who testified: "That he lived in Falmouth in Casco Bay the greater part of his time from his majority till he was taken by the indians in the fort with Cap^t Davis and he very well knew the island opposite Perpudock called Andross his island & he never heard that any person claimed it but Mr James Andross in that Day and Time. Mr Andross had a Garrison house on the island and he lived there as he was informed as his own proper estate & he S^d Ross lived there some times there in S^d Mr Andross's house or Garrison with his uncle Skillings."

During the time of king Philips war, about August 9, 1676 the indians attacked Falmouth, burning the houses and killing the people, among others Nathaniel Mitton, brother of Andrews' wife. Some of the fugitives, including relatives of Andrews, with the assistance of himself and the minister, Mr. Burroughs, escaped to his island at the mouth of the harbor, where he had a strong-hold, and secured themselves by building a stone barricade over the cliff of "White Head," traces of which may still be seen, and lived several months there under great privations and dangers from the indians. Andrews abandoned Falmouth, and died at Boston in 1704.

Thomas Andrews, and Joseph Andrews, drew house lots in Hingham, Mass. September 18, 1635. It is said that Thomas, the father came over with his only son, from Devonshire Eng. and settled at Hingham, where the son, Joseph, was the first town clerk.

Joseph Andrews, was made free at Boston, March 3, 1636, made constable at Barre Cove, - now Hingham, July 8, 1636.

The same year he was deputy of the General Court at Boston and one of a committee to inquire after the valuation of the several towns, and was a member of the General Court of that year, which sat until May 17, and was appointed one of a committee to look after the boundary between Massachusetts and Plymouth Colonies, and report at both courts, which was done at an adjourned session, August 1, 1637.

Goodman Andrews, was appointed 13th, March 1638, to run the line between Hingham and Weymouth. He was the father of Joseph above, and lived in Hingham to a great age.

Thomas Andrews was a deputy to the general court from Hingham in 1678. Samuel Andrews, in the Boston custom house, in 1671; is a descendant of Thomas, and Joseph his son, of Hingham, in 1635. The writer has a letter from him, dated January 6, 1887; in which he says; "My ancestors came from Devonshire, Eng., and settled in Hingham, Mass., in 1635, where Joseph Andrews, was the first town clerk. I belong to the ninth generation, in this country, and am an old boy, having been born the nineteenth of April, 1809."

John Andrews, son of Captain Thomas, of Hingham married Patience Nichols, September, 1658.

Thomas, Abigail and Ruth Andrews, of Hingham testified in 1708 that Mehitable Warren was not a witch.

December, 4. 1638, in record of quarter court, one William Andrews, was for having made an assault on one Coggan, sentenced to be severely whipped, and delivered up to whom the court shall direct; but on September 3, William Andrews, who was formerly committed for his ill and insolent carriage, is by this quarter court, held at Boston, released, and put to Mr. Endicott, who promises to pay Coggan £8, 10; Andrews to serve Mr. Endicott the rest of the time.

Thomas Andrews, Watertown, Mass. afterwards at Cambridge had wife Rebecca, and children, Thomas, born October fifteenth 1641. Daniel, born ——. Rebecca, born April eighteenth, 1646.

John Andrews, Ipswich, 1642, had wife Jane.

Rev. Samuel Andrews, son of Samuel and Elizabeth of Cambridge, was born there January 29, 1656, married Abigail, daughter of Robert Treat, governor of Conn. and settled at Milford; Conn., in 1685.

Mr. Samuel Andrews, and Mr. Cotton, the two fellows of Harvard college, were paid £50, for helping to carry on the president's work, after Mr. Oakes' death.

John Andrews, a sea cooper, from Wales, came to America about 1663, and married Susanna White, at Boston. An "Andrews Memorial" of this family has been written and published by Lieut. George Andrews, U. S. A.

Daniel Andrews, son of Thomas, of Watertown, was a school-master in Salem, in 1672. Savage says: he was accused of witchcraft, in 1692, — perhaps because he knew more than some of his neighbors, — but was released early the following year, when reason prevailed, against the influence of Cotton Mather.

John Andrews, and Mary his wife, settled at Farmington, Conn., in 1640. A very full and complete genealogy of this settler and his descendants, down to the year 1872, has been compiled and published, by Rev. Alfred Andrews, of New Britain, Conn., one of his descendants, under the title of "Andrews Memorial." It contains 652 pages, embracing the names of over 2000 descendants of John and Mary Andrews. This is one of the best works on the Andrews family ever published in America; while it is devoted principally to the authors branch of the family, it contains much valuable information respecting the family generally, and has been prepared at great labor and expense, and with care. It will prove of inestimable value to his kindred in establishing and preserving the family history and relationship.

William Andrews, the first school-master at Hartford, Conn., 1639; will dated April 1659; his name is on the monument of the Center Church cemetery, as one of those who came from Massachusetts, through the wilderness, with Rev. Thomas Hooker; wife Mary died at Cambridge, Jan. 10, 1640; another record says, at Braintree, Nov. 19, 1639; children, John, Elizabeth, Thomas, Samuel; second wife, Abigail.

Henry Andrews, Taunton, Mass., 1639; made free 1643; will, Mar. 13, 1652; wife, Mary; children, Henry, Mary, Sarah, Abigail.

Henry Andrews, Taunton, Mass., was killed by the indians in King Philip's war.

Edward Andrews, Newport, 1639; perhaps removed to Saco.

Francis Andrews, Hartford, 1639; will, 6 June 1662; children, John, Thomas, Jeremiah, Abraham, Elizabeth, Mary, Esther, Rebecca, Ruth, Hannah.

Thomas Andrews, Dorchester, 1635; died 20. August 1667: children, Thomas, Susannah; wife, Ann.

William Andrews, Lynn, 1634.

William Andrews, New Haven, a prominent man, signed the compact in 1639; probably accompanied governor Easton; was first at Boston or Charlestown; was active in military service in N. H.; kept the ordinary (hotel); one of the founders of the church; children, William, Samuel, Nathan.

Edward Andrews, Hartford, 1655; children, Edward, Solomon, Mary, Sarah.

Edward Andrews, Norwich, among the freemen 1655.

Jedediah Andrews, Dover, 1657; removed to Salisbury; wife, Mary; son Joseph.

John Andrews, Kittery or Saco, 1640.

Samuel Andrews, Charlestown, died about October 1659.

Samuel Andrews, Marlborough, 1667.

Samuel Andrews, New Haven, 1654.

Thomas Andrews, Dorchester, 1667.

It will be noticed that the ancestry of this family is not founded on the traditional "Three brothers" theory; neither is it improbable to suppose that the early settlers of the name were related. The records in England would probably give the information in many cases, if not in all. The antiquarian would doubtless meet with success should he investigate the subject, as has been done in numerous similar instances.

Note — In 1834 Farmer found of the name of Andrews, fifteen graduates at Harvard, eight at Yale, and six at other New England colleges.

IPSWICH.

It was a frequent custom for the early settlers in America to name the new homes after something in "Merrie England;" sometimes for a noted person, again for the old home town there.

Ipswich, Mass., was named after Ipswich, in England, a town in Essex. Ipswich, Mass., was the home of Robert Andrews and his descendants from 1635 down to the time of the Revolutionary war, so far as it relates to the writer's branch of the family; perhaps some of the kindred yet live there.

The papers in the Ipswich public library, prepared from the manuscripts of Abraham Hammatt, furnish considerable biographical information concerning the inhabitants of the place from the first settlement of the town, in 1633, down to 1700.

He was an antiquarian and once lived at Bath, Me., from 1800 to 1836; then removed to Ipswich, where he resided until his death, August 9, 1854, aged 74 years. The Ipswich Antiquarian papers, by Augustine Caldwell, and Arthur W. Dowe, of Ipswich, furnish much information concerning the people and affairs of the town from its earliest settlement. These papers were published irregularly, from October, 1879 until April, 1885.

We will notice a few of the earliest records of the place:

April 1th, 1633 — It is ordered that noe pson wtsoeuer shal goe to plant or inhabitt att Aggawam, withoutt leave of the court, except those that are already gone, vz: Mr. John Winthop, Jun^r Mr. Clerke, Robt^e Coles, Thomas Howlett, John Biggs, John Gage, Thomas Hardy, Will^m Perkins, Mr. Thornedicke, Will^m Srieant.

June 11 1633, There is leave granted to Tho: Sellen to plant att Aggawam.

5 August 1634, It is ordered that Aggawam shalbe called Ipswich.

At Ipsidge a plantation made upe this yeare. Mr. Ward, P. Mr. Parker T.

James Cudworth 1634.

1638-9 Mch 13, Maschonomet the Sagamore of Agawam, acknowledged that hee had received 20 £ of Mr. John Winthrope Jnor for all his land in Ipswich, for wch he acknowledged himselfe fully satisfied.

1639 Nov. 5. It was ordered that Ipswich should satisfy Mr. Winthrope for the 20 l paid the Indian for his right.

These settlers seem to have done as well in their dealing with the indians as the famous William Penn.

1640, May 13, Robert Andros is granted to draw wine at Ipswich, with the condition of the towne.

1648 Oct 18 — The village at the newe meadows at Ipswich is named Toppesfield.

Captain Edward Johnson, of Woburn, author of the history of New England, entitled, "Wonder working Providence of Sion's Savior in New England," and who was an ancestor of of the Stearns branch of the Andrews family, found in the genealogy of this book, thus discoursed on Ipswich, in 1634:

This year came over a further supply of eminent instruments for futhering this admirable worke of his, among whom the Reverend and judicious servant of Christ, Mr. Nathaniel Ward, who took up his station at the Towne of Ipswich, where the faithful servants of Christ gathered the ninth Church of his.

This town is scituated on a faire and delightful River, whose first rise or spring begins about five and twenty miles further up in the Country, issuing forth in a very pleasant pond. But soon after it betakes its course through a most hideous swamp of large extent, even for many miles, being a great Harbour for Beares; after its coming forth at this place, it groweth larger by the income of many small rivers, and issues forth in the sea, due east over against the Island of sholes, a great place of fishing for our English Nation. The peopling of this Towne is by men of good ranke and quality, many of them having the yearly Revenue of large lands in England before they come to this wilderness, but their Estates being imployed for Christ, and left in banke, as you have formerly heard, they are well content till Christ shall be pleased to restore it againe to them or theirs which in all reason should be out of the Prelate's Lands in England. Let all those whom it concerns (to judge) consider it well and do justice herein. This Towne lies in the Saggamoreship or Earldom of Agawam, Now by our English Nation called Essex. It is a very good Haven Towne, yet a little barr'd up at the mouth of the River. Some Merchants here are, (but Boston being the chiefest place of resort of shipping,) carries away all the Trade. They have very good Land for Husbandry where rocks hinder not the course of the Plow. The Lord has beene pleased to increase them in Corne and Cattle of late; In-somuch that they have many hundred quarters to spare yearly, and feed, at the latter end of summer, the Towne of Boston with good Beefe. Their Houses are many of them very faire built, with pleasant Gardens and Orchards, consisting of about one hundred and forty Families. Their meeting-house is a very good prospect to a great part of the Towne, and beautifully built; the Church of Christ here consists of about one hundred and sixty soules, being exact in their conversation and free from the Epidemicall Disease of all Reforming Churches, which under Christ is procured by their pious, Learned and Orthodox Ministry.

Among the early settlers of Ipswich appear the names of some noted families:

Hon. Col. John Appleton, born at Little Waldingfield, England 1586; settled at Ipswich, with his father, Samuel Appleton in 1635; died aged 87 years.

Major General Daniel Dennison, Commander in chief of the Military forces of Mass. Bay Colony, settled at Ipswich, 1637; died Sept. 20, 1682.

Samuel Symonds, Barrister, born at Yeldhorn, Essex, England; settled at Ipswich, 1637; was a magistrate, representative and deputy governor of the colony, 1673.

The ancestors of Ralph Waldo Emerson, and Gen. William T. Sherman, are said to have been among the early settlers at Ipswich. Thomas Emerson, settled there in 1638, and Cornelius Waldo, in 1652.

Rev. Nathaniel Rogers, came from England, and settled at Ipswich in 1636; died July 2, 1655; he was son of Rev. John Rogers, of Dedham, England, who died Oct. 18, 1639, aged 67.

He is claimed to be the grandson of John Rogers, Prebendary of St Paul's, Vicar of St Sepulchre's, and Reader of Divinity; burned at Smithfield, England, Feb. 14, 1555. This Nathaniel Rogers, had a son, John Rogers, President of Harvard College, who died July 2 1684, aged 54. His son Rev. John Rogers, was pastor of the first church, Ipswich, and died Dec. 28 1745, aged 80. Rev. Daniel Rogers, grandson of Nathaniel, died at Exeter, N. H. Dec, 9, 1785. aged 78 years.

Sir Richard Saltonstall, who came from England with Gov. Winthrop, in 1630, built his house in Ipswich, probably about 1635. In later years it was occupied by Col. Hodgkins, of Revolutionary fame. It is said to be still standing near the depot.

Gov. Thomas Dudley, resided at Ipswich, from soon after the settlement, until 1639.

William Clerk, was one of the twelve who came with Winthrop and commenced the settlement at Ipswich, 1632-3.

Thomas Emerson, was one of the "seven men" in 1646.

The record show that several companies of soldiers from Ipswich served in the revolutionary war; the names of such as are supposed may be relatives to this branch of the family are here given.

In Capt. Thomas Burnham's company: John Farley, 2nd Lieut. privates, Isaac Burnham, Ebenezer Kimball, Elisha Newman Samuell Newman, Daniel Low. Marched from Ipswich, on the alarm 19, April, 1775; Three days in service, sixpence per mile.

In Capt. Abrm. Dodge's company: Ebenezer Low, 1st Lieut., Sergeants, David Low, William Story, John Andrews, corporal, William Low, privates, Joshua, Daniel, James, Jacob and Benjamin Andrews, Benjamin, Moses, Amos, Mark, Joseph, Ebenezer, Francis, Ebenezer jr., and William Burnham, Moses Kimball, Robert Newman, Seth, Joseph, Andrew, and Jesse Story, the latter slain at Bunker Hill, and William Farley, drummer.

The company drew coat money, 25 s, each at Prospect Hill,

Dec. 29, 1775.

In Capt. Gideon Parker's company, 11th Regt. Foot, Col. Moses Little, December, 1776; sergeant, Stephen Low, privates, Solomon, and Jonathan Burnham, and William Butler.

In Capt. Nathaniel Ward's company, in Col. Little's Regt., sergeant, Jabes Farley.

Mr. Augustine Caldwell, antiquarian, of Ipswich, says that Andrews is a more common name at Essex than at Ipswich; Essex was the Chebacco parish of early Ipswich, — and probably the Andrews farms were there. The old Andrews House on Turkey shore, was not the original Andrews house; it was built by Daniel Hovey, in 1668; and David Andrews was the owner of it when he died, perhaps twenty years ago. It was in the Andrews name only for a generation. The original Andrews town house was an "ordinary," (an inn.)

From an Essex newspaper the following items are clipped: GOOD GRIT. — On wednesday afternoon, as Mr. William Andrews was in the woods a mile from any house, getting timber, a large stick fell on to his right leg, breaking both bones between the knee and ankle. He called for help but no one came and he splintered up his leg, cut two crutches and hobbled out to the house of Mr. Henry Andrews, when he was taken home.

The dwelling house and about quarter of an acre of land situated on milk street, the homestead estate of the late Almira Andrews, was sold at auction on monday afternoon. E. B. Andrews was the purchaser. This shows that the name is still familiar within the limits of old Ipswich.

LOVELL.

The town of Lovell, in Oxford county, Maine, was the home of Captain Abraham Andrews, Captain Samuel E. Andrews, and many of their numerous descendants. It will not interest other branches of the family so much, but is briefly noticed here as the one spot upon which we look back as HOME; the scene of youthful recollections, the home of many early friends who have been very dear through life; where we were born and reared to manhood.

Our relatives there embraced a wide acquaintance, including the families of Andrews, Hamblen, Stearns, Kimball, Gordon, Fry, Fickett, Barker, Heald, Keniston, Kilgore, Abbott, Dresser, McDaniels, Russell, Pottle, and some others.

It was settled about 1788. After the Revolution Captain Abraham Andrews, with his wife's uncle, John Stearns, then an old man about seventy years of age, and her brother, Benjamin Stearns, came to Lovell and were the first settlers there; others soon followed them, among whom were Animas McAlister, Stephen Dresser, Joshua Whiting, Oliver Whiting, Josiah Heald and Samuel E. Andrews, a nephew of Captain Abraham. These people all came from Massachusetts.

Their route seems to have been by way of Concord, N. H. From that point there was a rude bridle path across the country through the woods south of the White mountains, made by Stark and his followers, probably, to Fryeburg, on the Saco River, a distance of eighty miles; which place was settled about 1763; also by settlers from Massachusetts. The distance from there to the central part of Lovell, where the settlement was made, was something better than a dozen miles, about fifteen miles to the spot located by Captain Abraham. Fryeburg and Lovell have always been adjoining towns. The term town must be understood by western people as meaning a township and not a village.

There is a large body of water running nearly, if not quite, through the whole length of Lovell from north to south, ten miles or more in length, called Kezar pond, extending nearly to the Saco river, which in its meanderings in the town of Fryeburg traverses nearly forty miles. These waterways must have greatly facilitated travel for the new settlers through an unbroken forest, in summer easily navigated by boats and rafts; the smooth surface of the ice in winter afforded an excellent highway, as many a boy of my time can testify who has tried it on his skates.

Samuel E. Andrews did not come by the Concord route, but from the south, by way of Buxton; perhaps may have been attracted there from the fact that his father's uncle, Jonathan Andrews, had settled at Scarboro fifty years before, where there was quite a numerous family of relatives.

The attraction for settlement at Lovell was the free lands offered to new settlers. Captain Abraham obtained one of the free lots of one hundred acres on the side of Sebato's mountain and there made his home; the same place where Charles G. Andrews resided until within a few years since.

Benjamin Stearns at first occupied the adjoining land, where Joseph Smith now lives, and boarded with his brother-in-law Andrews. Afterwards he moved to the hill south of Lovell Center, sometimes called Dea. Stearn's Hill, and made a farm there, occupied afterwards for many years by his son of the same name, better known as Deacon Stearns, noted for his pure life, eminent faith, piety and active interest in religious matters. He died at his post of duty in the meeting house about 1872.

John Stearns, the uncle, settled at Lovell Center and made the farm afterwards occupied by his son David for many years, where James Evans now resides.

Sebatos mountain was named in honor of an indian of that name who served as a guide for Arnold's expedition to Quebec in 1775; by whom I am not advised. As Capt. Abraham Andrews and Samuel E. Andrews, then a lieutenant in Captain Hutchins' company, were both in the expedition, they may have known the indian and perhaps named the mountain for him in recognition of his services on that occasion. There is a tradition that this indian once killed a wildcat, or catamount, as they are called in that vicinity, on this mountain before the settlement by the white people there.

It is said that the new settlers started from Fryeburg on a prospecting tour and that the first "Massachusetts Soil" discovered was in Lovell, meaning that the soil in Lovell resembled that in Massachusetts.

Isaac S. Andrews, commonly called "Uncle Isaac," related some facts which throw a few rays of light upon the early life of the new settlers; concerning his father, Captain Abraham, he said that he worked on his lot in summer clearing up fields for cultivation.—Our people in the west will have to be told that this meant the hewing down of an immense growth of forest trees and burning the wood, occupying many days to clear off even an acre of ground. The land when cleared of trees was little better than a bed of stones. On such land the settlers were enabled to raise small crops of corn, rye, oats, sometimes a little wheat, flax for linen, etc., peas, beans, pumpkins, potatoes and vegetables. It produces very good grass and hay.

In winter Captain Andrews worked for a man named Evans, in Fryeburg, cutting and hauling pine lumber into Saco river to be rafted down to the older settlements near the sea. He worked there during the week and on Saturday evening after the work was finished would take a load of provisions and supplies for the family on his back and travel down the river to Kezar pond, then up the pond on the ice to the mill brook on the east side, then up the brook by a path through the deep snow two miles further to his cabin at Sebatos, arriving there at midnight later. After a few hours rest he worked part of the day on Sunday preparing fuel and attending to other necessary work for the comfort and support of the family during another week and at night retraced his steps to Fryeburg, fifteen miles, in time to resume his labors on Monday morning. Such was the manner in which a hero of the Revolution was left by his country to support himself and rear a young family, after spending almost his entire fortune and seven of the best years of his life in active campaigns to maintain the independence of his country.

The settlers of Lovell were poor and relied entirely on their own exertions for support. It must have been a struggle for existence to wring their support from such surroundings. They must have possessed a moral courage of an exalted kind to cling to such methods of living. On one occasion food became so scarce they were obliged to dig up and eat the potatoes planted for seed until a supply of food could be obtained.

Before the Revolution Captain Andrews owned a farm in Massachusetts and was in prosperous circumstances. At the close of the war these had nearly all gone and his possessions consisted in Continental money. He told of paying twenty-five dollars for his breakfast at that time in such money; and of giving about twelve hundred dollars of the same kind for a heifer. No doubt his wife, Esther Stearns, came to her death from hardships and privations to which she was not inured in that new country; in her efforts to rear her family. She had been well raised. The people of Massachusetts, before the Revolution, had become prosperous and had comfortable homes. It was a terrible change to leave such a home and go down to a howling wilderness; such as the back woods of Maine then presented. She was a soldier's wife and followed where duty led.

This was not an isolated instance. What was true of Captain Abraham Andrews and his family was equally true of other settlers of Lovell contemporaneous with him. W.

have much to admire in the fortitude, heroism and patriotism of our ancestors. Those days of hardships have long since past, and Lovell has since been the happy homes of nearly four generations of prosperous people.

“ Their bones are dust,
“ Their swords are rust.”

It would be absurd for one who has visited the place but once in more than a quarter of a century, to discourse on the history of the place, to those who have resided there during that period.

Our maternal uncle, Winfield S. Hamblen, who was born in Lovell, but since about the year 1859 a resident of the state of Pennsylvania, thus describes the home at Lovell:

I regret that no one has attempted a pen picture of the old homestead; (of his father) we all do love it so well, as for myself, I never think of our old home without an instinctive desire to raise my hat in token of respect for it. It is a sort of sacred presence which hushes the voice,—you may not remember as well as I do that beautiful natural meadow, which lay to the east of the old home; it was bordered around with trees of delightful variety; a fine trout brook, well stocked with fish, wound its way through its midst, with waving grass on either bank; on the north was the large mill brook, of which you spoke, flowing into the finest of all little lakes, “ Kezar Pond,” that lay at the west of the farm. During the time I lived there, except in the winter, scarcely a day passed that I did not look upon that little lake which mirrored its beautiful borders that rise high above its surface. I used to run the risk of breaking the Sabbath, in a Puritanic way, that I might behold it. The farm itself lay upon a cone about three hundred feet in height, to the west, and slightly to the north lay the pond, about a mile wide; north and west like the section of an amphitheatre were the foot hills of the White mountains, the smaller feet being bathed in its very waters. In form like rows those ranges of hills raised higher and higher, until we called them mountains, which still continued to rise until they break in white caps of snow, some twenty or thirty miles away, then receding in airy undulations as they raised, as Richardson would say, the scene was "like a swelling sea wave which a magician's wand has stretched, transforming it instantly and holding it in bondage evermore." Well do I remember the warm days in June when hoeing corn, and my hoe handle seemed to need rest, of looking far away over the scene and catching a glimpse of snow around Mt. Washington so fair and white; it seemed very refreshing. Then near the building was a spring and beautiful pine grove which we used to call "the pines," that gave us such pleasure as a playground; it was a grateful shade in summer, and protected us from the north-west wind in winter, besides it was ever permeating the breezes which went sighing and sighing through the branches, with its own balm of healing.—Don't let me forget to say that it always furnished me pitch with which to mend my stubbed toe when I went bare foot.

GENEALOGY.

Rev. Alfred Andrews, author of the Andrews Memorial, treating of the Connecticut branch of the family, descended from John and Mary Andrews, of Farmington; gives a good idea of the vast amount of labor and the great difficulties attending the labors of the antiquary. in the compilation of a work of this kind. His description of the general character of his kindred is a good picture. Much of what he says will apply with equal force to this work.

He says: The purpose and object of the following pages is to give a brief genealogical history of John Andrews and his wife, Mary; the settlers in Connecticut, 1640, and their descendants. An attempt has been made in these pages to give an account of the birth, parentage, occupation and location, of each of the sons and daughters of these Puritan pioneers, and early settlers in this country. It seems to be proper just here to say that this object has been accomplished, with more or less accuracy and fullness, in exact proportion to the record found, or facts furnished. Every available means have been used; private diaries, the old family bible, school and ecclesiastical society records, church and town records, probate, court and war records, state archives, private burying grounds and public cemeteries, printed genealogies and family memorials, and last, but not least, letters correspondence directly with the families of the name, to the number of 2,000 received and a far greater number written, to which no response was ever made.

The public records down to the war of the Revolution, 1775, were to some good degree and extent, kept in good order, considering the newness of the country; but at the breaking out of that war, almost everything of the nature was abandoned, both in families and public, except, perhaps, the Probate court and a very few churches; then immediately succeeding the war was a wonderful spirit of emigration among the survivors, and families removed everywhere, very like the dispersion of the Jews of old—for they forsook father, mother, brothers and sisters, houses and lands, for the frontiers and border settlements; bidding farewell to all family connections, genealogies and memorials; their strong arms were exclusively occupied in clearing the new farm and building the log house;—not even time or material to furnish a headstone to the grave when one of their number died. In the new country every energy was taxed for a subsistence, hence the great, and in many instances, insurmountable difficulties in finding the descendants of these enterprising emigrants.

I acknowledge, however, my obligations to many genealogists, and profess a strong desire to gratify and aid all studious antiquaries in their researches after facts, dates and history. I honor this class of men and women, yea, more, I reverence them as gifted and inspired of God in an important sense, for it only falls to the lot of a few to inherit the taste, patience or skill, to gather materials and collate them into a genealogy; while doing it they are almost sure of incurring the ridicule of the thoughtless and gay, as well of the contempt of the avaricious and money making portion of community. It is only succeeding generations that will duly appreciate their labors, or honor their graves. Very few of all the thousands of names which appear in the following pages, ever appeared before in history; for the most part they are persons unknown to fame, hence the task of writing a sketch, even a brief one, has been found quite a different thing from merely transcribing what, from an index, may be already found in print; not that our family are entirely unknown to fame; far am I from a disposition to undervalue the progenitor or his descendants; I am proud of both.

In morals, distinguished for piety, patronism, honesty, industry and frugality; their natural traits and gifts; common height, moderately high cheek bones, and ruddy countenances, inclined to be thick set, of quick step, with sanguine temperament, strong passions, but generous impulses, light, clear complexion, tenacious of life and hopeful, extremely fond of frontier life and always ready to enlist in defense of country, restless under restraint, of ready wit, fond of domestic life, very prolific, of good common sense, or when sudden emergencies arise, have expedients ready.

The males are mostly farmers or mechanics, generally well to do in the world; the females have been found equal to their brothers and have formed alliances quite as honorable and satisfactory. Very few of the descendants of John and Mary Andrews are, or have been found in deep poverty or ignorance. Of several thousand with whom I have corresponded, a fair hand, and sensible expressions have almost invariably appeared, while many have evinced intellectual tastes and capacities which would grace any position in life. And this is found true of both sexes alike.

EXPLANATION.

In the genealogy the families are arranged in the order of each generation.

The name of the head of a family is given in full, followed by the Christian name, only, of the children, to avoid repetition of the surname.

The names are consecutively numbered; some names appearing twice; first as a child, second as the head of a family. In such cases, when the name appears the second time, as the head of a family, it is followed by the number, in brackets, given the first time.

To find the line of ancestors, take any given name and trace the line backwards by the numbers as above indicated; also, following the name of the head of a family, the line of ancestors is given in italics, with the exponent number of the generation attached, in parenthesis, thus:

H. F. ANDREWS,⁹ (Jacob,⁸ Isaac S.,⁷ Abraham,⁶ Solomon,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert.¹)

Following the name is an exponent number denoting the generation.

FIRST GENERATION.

1. ROBERT ANDREWS,¹ came from England, and settled at Ipswich, early in the year 1635.

The Andrews Memorial states: that Capt. Andrews, came from Norwich, Norfolk County, England, early in 1635, as owner and master of ship "Angel Gabriel." Richard Mather, in his narrative of his voyage in the James says, they came in company part of the way, and that many Godly people were on board the ship.

This Capt. Andrews had a sister Mary, who was the wife of Robert Burnham.* Their 3 boys, John, Thomas and Robert, it is said, were put in charge of their uncle Andrews, master of the ship "Angel Gabriel," which was cast away at Tammaquid, in Maine, in a terrible storm, 15 Aug. 1635, after which loss, Capt. Andrews settled with his 3 nephews at Chebacco, in Massachusetts Bay.

In a book entitled "Ancient Pemaquid," by J. W. Thornton, 1857, it says: On the last wednesday of May in this year (1635), the "Angel Gabriel," a strong ship of 240 tons, and carrying a heavy armament of 16 guns swung at her moorings in the King's Road, four or five miles distant from the city. Her destination was Pemaquid. On her deck was a company of many Godly Christians, some from other ships, bound for New England; one of them was Richard Mather, visited there by Sir Ferdinando Georges, but the chief personage in the company was John Cogswell, a London merchant of wealth who with the fragments of his freight, and accompanied by his servants, settled at Ipswich.

The ship in the fury of an easterly storm with her cargo were totally lost; some of the passengers not escaping death. This shipwreck is chronicled as one of the greatest disasters in the annals of Pemaquid.

An old Pemaquid seal is given in the book as shown in the accompanying engraving.

Pemaquid was about fifty miles east of Portland, Maine, and was the patent granted to Aldsworth and Elbridge, of Bristol, England, and includes the present towns of Bristol, Newcastle, Damariscotta, and Nobleboro, Maine.

The "A. E.," on the seal were the initials of the patentees, "1631," the date of the patent.

Accompanying the cut of the seal in the book is this note:

"The Gabriel," a little bark, was one of Frobisher's discovery ships engaged in no less than three of his expeditions, the voyages of 1576-7-'88, and was, it may be supposed a favorite vessel with him. That ship may be taken as a representative of the naval architecture of that time, which was not essentially modified even down to the days of her namesake, the "Angel Gabriel," of Pemaquid memory. Fortunately the contemporary accounts of Frobisher's voyages, furnish hints for a general description of this pioneer ship in the mission of Christian civilization to the new world; she was about thirty tons burden.

Sir Ferdinando Gorges, was a patentee of the lands about Saco and Portland, Maine.

John Cogswell, mentioned, settled at Ipswich, and had lands granted him there as appears from the records; under date of 1635, is this entry:

Granted to Mr. John Coggs well three hundred acres of land at the further Chebacco, hauing the River on the southeast, the land of Will^m White on y^e Northwest & a Creek Coming out of the Riuer towards will^m whites farme on the northeast. Bound- ed also on the west with a creeke & a little brooke. Also there was granted to him a percell of ground containing eight acres, vpon part whereof the said John Coggs well hath Built an house, it being in y^e corner lott in Bridge Streete and has goodman Bradstreete houselott on y^e s. e.

The was also granted to him six acres of Ground late mr. John Spencers, Butting vpon the river on the south east haue- ing a lott of Edmund Gardners on the north east & a lott of Edmund Saywords on the south west wch six acres of ground the sd John Coggs well hath sold to John Perkins the younger his heirs and assigns.

The fact that he was designated "Mr." at that date, and the considerable amount of land granted him indicate that he was a man of good social standing in society.

The records of about that date further show that Cornelius Waldo was Mr. Coggs well's farmer.

The name of Robert Andrews does not appear among those who went to Aggawam in 1633; but it does appear frequently in the public records after that date.

He was "made free 6 May 1635."

And "3 Sept 1635 Robt^e Andrews licensed to keep ordinarye (an inn) in the plantacon where he lyves during the pleasure of y^e court." This is the earliest reference to a public house in the records of Ipswich.

Hammatt says that he possessed a houselot on the south side of the river in 1635,

It is stated in the antiquarian papers that Robert Andrews lived near the South Church.

We find his name several times in the records of grants of lands. April 20, 1635. Thomas Firman was granted one hun- dred acres of land, beyond Chebacco Creeke having Robert Andrewes land on the north west and a great bare hill on the south west.

Same date; John Perkins Jun' was granted a house lott containing an acre lying by the river, hauing Thomas Hardyes & Robert Andrewes house lotts on the south west side.

Same date; Granted to John Cross likewise five and Twenty acres in the North Side the Towne haueing the land of Thomas Dudley Esqu' on the North, and Robert Andrews toward the South, Richard Hoffield had a house lott 1635 beyond Mr. Hubbards having the highway to Chebacco on the South and an house lott of Robert Andrews on the east.

In 1636; Thomas Hardy had a house lot near the river adjoining Robert Andrews and Thomas Howlett.

In 1635; Robert Andrews is allowed the sell wine by retail, "if he do not wittingly sell to such as abuse it by drunkenness." 1640 May 13 Robert Andros is granted to draw wine at Ipswich, with the conditions of the towne.

We see from this that our ancestors, at that early day, clearly recognized the power to legislate, restraining the sale of intoxicating liquors, as a police regulation.

18 Jan 1641 Robert Andrew witnessed a deed from Daniel Denison to Humprey Griffin of a dwelling house &c near the mill.

Richard Scofield conveys same to Robert Roberts 2:5^{mo}:1643. in which it is bounded by Robert Andrews, Mr. Bartlemew, John Perkins the younger and Thomas Boreman.

WILL OF ROBERT ANDREWS.

The 1 of March 1643.

In y^e name of God Amen. I Robert Andrews of Ipswich in New England being of perfect understanding & memory doe make this my last will & testament.

Imprimis, I commend my soul into the hands of my mercifull Creator & Redeemer and I doe commit my body after my departure out of this world to be buried in seemly manner by my friends &c.

Concerning my estate, Imprimis. I doe make my eldest son, John Andrews my executor.

Item. I give unto my wife Elizabeth Andrews forty pounds, & to John Griffin the son of Humfrey Griffin sixteen pounds to be paid unto him when he shall be twenty one years & if he shall dy before he comes to that age, it shall return to my two sonnes John & Thomas Andrews.

Item, concerning my son Thomas Andrews my will is that he shall live with his brother John Andrews 3 years, two of which he shall be helpfull to his brother John Andrews in his husbandry, & the last of the 3 years he shall go to scole to recover his learning, & if he shall go to the University, or shall set himselfe upon some other way of living, his brother John shall allow him ten pounds by the yeer for four yeers & then fifteen pounds by the yeer for two yeers succeeding after.

Item, concerning the fourscore pounds, which is to be paid unto my son in law Franklyn's daughter, Elizabeth Franklyn, my will is that if she dy before the debt is due, it shall be thus disposed of, ten pounds of it shall go to my son Daniel Hovey's child, Daniel Hovey my grandchild, & the other seventy pounds shall be divided between my two sonnes John & Thomas Andrews & if those my two sons should dy, then thirty pounds of it should be divided between my 3 kinsmen John, Thomas & Robert Barnam by equal portions & twenty more should go to Humfrey Griffins two other sonnes & the other twenty shall go to Daniel Hovey.

And because my son John Andrews is yet under age. I doe commend him unto Thomas Howlett as his guardian untill he shall come of age.

The marke  of ROBERT ANDREWS.

This will was proved in y^e court held at Ipswich 26th of y^e first month 1644.

There are some discrepancies in the dates given in the foregoing records, we present them as found; taken together they refer unmistakably to the same Robert Andrews.

His will, for so short a document, is bristling full of information, always a pleasure and gratification to the antiquarian.

From the facts there stated, and so well corroborated in the other records and authorities mentioned, we have been able to fix with absolute certainty the identity of himself and his immediate descendants.

It names his wife, Elizabeth, and his sons John and Thomas; and his grandchildren, Elizabeth Franklyn and Daniel Hovey; showing that he must have had daughters, naming their husbands. By this means we are able to identify them in other records and documents. We notice with pleasure his provision for the education of his son Thomas, and shall see later that it was turned to his advantage.

The fact that he mentions John, son of Humphrey Griffin, as a legatee, strongly suggests that the legatee was a relative. Humphrey Griffin died at Ipswich, September 16, 1662, leaving a widow, Elizabeth; his wife Joan died July 17, 1657; possibly the first wife may have been a kinswoman to Robert Andrews; a sister perhaps. He also mentions with certainty his nephews, John, Thomas and Robert Burnham.

Thomas Howlett, designated as the guardian of his son, John, may have been related, yet he does not so state. Howlett was one of the first settlers who went to Ipswich with Mr. Winthrop, and his name is frequently mentioned in the early records, from which it appears that Andrews and Howlett resided near each other at Ipswich.

Under the grants, 1634, as taken out of "Y^e Old Book," Given and Granted vnto Thomas Howlett two acres of meadow and two acres & half of marsh adjoining vnto that, laying between the towne River & the land of Will^m Sergants and John Nowmane vnto him his heires or Assigns.

Also, same date; Giuen and Granted vnto Thomas howlett six acres of land more or less in equal share with John manning and others, lying vpon this neck the towne standeth, between the land of John Gadge on the one side and Thomas Clark on the other, vnto his heires and Assigns.

And his name is also mentioned same date, in grants to John Gadge and John Manning.

Hammatt mentions Robert Andrews² of Ipswich, as probably the son of our Robert¹; he died about 1675; will dated December 6, 1673, proved March 26, 1676; by it he directs that his property be divided between his mother and his brothers John and Joseph, and appoints his brother (in law) Samuel Symonds, executor.

I am very positive that Hammatt was mistaken about the relationship; indeed, the wills of these two men strongly indicate that they were not related as father and son. I am rather inclined to think that Robert² was the son of Robert and Grace Andrews of Boxford.

We have been unable to ascertain the dates of birth, marriage or death of Robert Andrews¹.

His children, so far as positively known, and which are probably all, were

SECOND GENERATION.

6. ALICE ANDREWS², [2] (*Robert*¹,) married William Franklyn; his name appears in the early records of Ipswich.

January 5th, 1634, Granted and given vnto John Newman, will^m Sergant, and will^m franklin about twelve acres of land more or less to every one of them alike ——— pportion or share of the same lying on the south side of John Perkins the elder his land & Resigned unto the towne again by mr. John Spencer uppon further Inlargement, vnto him, vnto every one of them their heirs, assigns e'r:

He had a house lot granted to him in 1634, and soon after removed to Newbury, and thence to Boston and Roxbury; one child.

7. ELIZABETH.

Agreed between Robert Andrews of Ipswich & William Franklyn of Boston.

1. that the said Robert Andrews doth acknowledge the full summe of £40 part of the portion of Alice late wife of William Franklyn to be due from him & his heyres to the said William Franklyn his son in law.

3. The said William Franklyn [doth acknowledge] is to leave this £40 in the hands of Robert Andrews his father in law untill Elizabeth Franklyn, his daughter by Alice aforesaid, now deceased, have accomplished the full age of 18 years, if shee continue unmarried, if shee bee married with consent of her parents, or those that shall be orderly substitute in their roome, then (this £40 to be made £80 & shall be paid to her so soon as)* she shall have accomplished the full age of 17 years, if so married, or of 18 years though unmarried.

4. That in case the sayd Elizabeth shall dy before the time foreset, whereat this portion shall be due, & to be paid unto her, then this full sum of £80 is to be paid by Robert Andrews & his heirs to William Franklyn & his heirs at the time where-to, if she had lived, she had accomplished the full age of 18 years complete.

5. That in case Robert Andrews should survive William Franklyn, then Elizabeth to be committed as concerning her education into care and power of her grandfather, Robert Andrews, who yet is desired by William Franklin y^t as farre as he shall see it conducing to the good of the child, he would have special respect to his present wife Phebe Franklyn herein, if shee continuing desirous y^t his daughter Elizabeth should live with her, but this motion is so to be understood y^t power is left to the said Robert Andrews concerning the child's education in the case.

ALICE RADCLIFFE.

The last agreement was made by George May, first husband of Elizabeth Franklin, with her uncle, Thomas Andrews. Her second husband was John Glover, who lived at Swansey in 1683, and prior to that time, in Boston. We have no dates of the birth, marriage or death of either Alice Andrews or Elizabeth Franklin, her daughter.

8. ABIGAIL ANDREWS², [3] (*Robert*¹), married Daniel Hovey, of Ipswich. She died June 24, 1665.

In the Ipswich antiquarian papers is a drawing of his house supposed to have been built in 1668, with this statement: The very ancient dwelling and wharf at the northerly end of Turkey Shore, were built and owned by Daniel Hovey, the ancestor of the Ipswich Hoveys.

He was in Ipswich in 1637. September 27, 1683, he testified that he married Abigail Andrews more than forty years before.

His name is mentioned often in the records.

Sworn to by Mr. Thomas Andrews, y^e 27, 4, '62, the Adm'.

The value of the crops &c. refered to the Court at Ipswich who is to order the same partly because the farm is mortgaged and partly because of the failing of the crops by reason of the present drouth And the said Adm' have liberty to further perfect the Inventory, and bring it in to the next court at Ipswich, and furthermore is ordered to take care and provide for the widow out of the estate until the said court held at Ipswich.

Thomas Andrews, the adm'r, was brother of the deceased, and the same who was the school-master.

His children:

16. JOHN.

17. SARAH (CANNON.)

18. THOMAS ANDREWS², [5] (*Robert*¹), the school-master, died unmarried, intestate, at Ipswich, July 10, 1683, mentioned in his father's will.

The Ant. papers say: Mr. Thomas Andrews, kept school in a one story building, which stood upon the site of the old Grammar school house, now owned and used as a barn by Thomas Tilton. Mr. Ezekiel Cheever, taught and lived in the same place previous to Mr. Andrews.

March 15, 1663, voted to invite Mr. Thomas Andrews to come to the Towne & keepe the publeque free scoole, and Goodman Gidding and Goodman Bishop are desired to acquaint him with the Townes vote.

The following extracts are taken from the address of Abraham Hammatt delivered on the 200 anniversary of the foundation of the grammar schools in Ipswich, instituted January 11-21, 1650-51.

The successor of Mr. Cheever was Mr. Thomas Andrews who kept the school from August 1, 1660, twenty-three years, during which time there went from Ipswich to Harvard college Samuel Bishop, &c. * * * Mr. Andrews died July 10, 1683, and left a considerable personal property to his relatives. He seemed to have no children, and was probably never married.

Hammatt further says: some of the founders and patrons of this school may have had their Latin whipped into them by John Milton; some of them may have heard William Shakespeare "warble his native wood notes;" and some of them undoubtedly had looked on and wondered at the great anthesis, Francis Bacon.

Thomas Andrews, of Ipswich, received a legacy in the will of John Ward of that place Dec. 28, 1652, "Item my books, I doe give to Thomas Andrews, of Ips^b & allso my chirurgery (surgery) chest and all that is now in it."

Mr. Thomas Andrews, school master in Ipswich, who died July 10, 1683, Inventory presented Sept 25, 1683, by John Andrews, of Salem, and Daniel Hovie Jr. who made oath in court that it was a true inventory of the estate of their uncle Thomas Andrews, deceased. Amount £551-16-10.

 28. NATHANIEL, b. July 6, 1664.

29. JOHN ANDREWS,³ [16] (John,² Robert,¹) called the Lieutenant. He appears to have lived both in Ipswich and Salem.

In 1672 he was mentioned as a carpenter in a lease from Samuel Cogswell to his son William Andrews.

John Andrews, surety for Robert Cannon, to satisfy an execution, did tender a parcell of land lyeing neare his house in Salem, which was prised at fourte pounds, being better than a quarter of an acre, by land of John Cogswell, Apr. 17, 1673.

Perhaps this Robert Cannon may have been the husband of his sister, Sarah.

John Andrews, Sen^r, of Chebacco, carpenter, bought of Richard Lee, of the same place in Essex county, planter, All that six acres of marsh, more or less, scituate, lyeing and being on the ffar syde of that creek that bounds Proctors Land & bounded by that creeke, buting down to a cove toward Goodman Dances Island to the great creeke and so upon a straight line up to that creeke to Proctor's ground. The aforesayd six acres of marsh being alienated, bargained & sould by me, Richard Lee unto the sayd John Andrews, Sen^r, for & in consideration of nyne pounds in corn in hand payd. Nov. 20, 1673.

John Andrews of Ipswich, carpenter, bought of Samuel Symonds of Ips. Gent. All that pcell of his land, or lott, belonging to the farmme or tenement of the s^d Samuell Symonds which Killigresse Rosse now holdeth of the sayd Samuel, containeing by estimation three acres, be it more or less, with all and singular its appertenances, which land lyeth at the lotts adjoining to the scoole farme of Ipswich, commonly called the new pasture, in the towne and shire aforesaid, excepting the commonage, &c. June 16, 1674.

John Andrews, Sen^r, of Ipswich, in consideration of a small parcell of marsh & £8, deeds to Henry Bennett, of the same towne, All that my division lott, being a middle lott granted to me by the towne of Ipswich afors^d, N: 52, in the town Book scituate lyeing & being in Ipswich afors^d, at Castle Neck, having the land of Daniel Warner, on the one syde, and the lott of Samuëll Ingalls on the other syde, upon Wiggwam Hill, with all and singular the appurtenances, &c. Oct. 25, 1673.

Ack^d Jan. 27, 1673.

The marsh Bennet deeded same day to Andrews was a part of my ffarme lyeing neare to the foote bridge over the creeke being cumpassed by a creeke & ditched out to part it from the ffarme, conteineing one acre & a halfe, be it more or less, as it is bounded by the creeke and ditch afore mentioned.

John Andrews of Ipswich, bought of Robert Cross, Jr. of Ipswich, seaman, two parcells of marsh & land in Ipswich at an Iland formerly in y^e possession of Robert Cross, Sen^r, in Chebacho River, bounded, the one parcell conteineing six acres, be it more or less, bounded by a creeke north, the land of Benjamin Marshall towards the west, and the River towards the south and east. Allso the other parcell of six acres of marsh & one acre of upland being upon the same Iland and bounded from an oake tree, North ward to the river and then againe southwest to a stake and from that stake norwest to y^e River. To hold &c. Oct. 29, 1675.

In 1675 he was on a committee to lay out land near Ipswich.

John Andrews, Sen^r, of Ipswich, bought of Nath^l Emerson, of Ipswich, a 3 acre lott, the granter's father, Thomas Emerson's Division of Plumb Island, Castle Neck & Hogg Island & fell out to be (on) Hogg Island, in the county of Ipswich, July 13, 1676.

L^t John Andrews entered, in town book, according to law:

One Iron gray horse.

One White mare with a long tayle.

John Andrews, Sen^r, of Ipswich, had made over to him by Robert Cross, Jr., of Ipswich, a parcell of marsh which I had of my ffather, Robert Cross, Sen^r, conteining ten acres, more or less, lying in Cheboco River, bounded as follows: from a stake towards Hogg Island River, North west and from that stake to another against the middle of Dillo Est. and from that stake bounded with the thatch, and from that stake Northeast to a stake at the River. 21, 9^{mo}, 1676.

Be it knowne vnto all men by these presents that I, John Andrews, Sen^r, of Ipswich, in the county of Essex, for and in consideration of that natural affection I doe beare to James Gidding and Elizabeth, his wife, my daughter, Have * * * and do * * * conferme vnto the s^d James Gidding, my sonn in law, and Elizabeth, his wife, my sayd daughter, and to the children of her, my daughter, and their heirs forever, one moyaty and halfe part of that land at Averill's Hill, the upland as it is already parted where the said James and my son, John Andrews, now dwell, and also halfe the meadow belonging therunto, viz: James Godfrey and John Andrews to make deuission of the meadow between themselves, with all and singular the appertenances and priuiledges belonging thereunto. To have, &c. June 30, 1677.

Acknowledged by s^d John Andrews, Feb. 16, 1677.

John Andrews, Sen^r, of Ipswich, carpenter, bought of John Cogswell, of Ipswich, in America, in the shire of Essex, gent, and Margaret, his wife, a parcell of upland and marsh, about 40 acres, it being a part of the land the grantor's father, John Cogswell highred (hired) of the town of Ipswich, also, and island of marsh & thatch of about 2 acres, which lyeth by Goodman's old saw mill, bounded by stakes, & trees, &c., by land of Goodman Coleman's fence, by Clark's Brook, by Glos-ter line & by Chebacco River, &c., Andrews to pay yearly to Cogswell 20 in pork during the term of the said lease.

Ipswich, June 16, 1678.

1683. Mch. 30, Samuel Appleton, Esq^r, is appointed captaine to the first foot company in Ipswich; Ensign Thomas Burnham, leiftennt; Simon Stacy, Ensign.

Mr Daniel Epps is appointed captaine of the second ffoot company in Ipswich. Mr. John Appleton Jun, lieftenant and Thomas Jacobs, Ensign.

Corporal John Andrews is appointed lieftennt to the 3^d company at Chebacco, and Mr. Goodhue, Jun, Ensigne.

He was adm. with his cousin, Daniel Hovey, of the Estate of his uncle, Thomas Andrews, September 1683.

He was imprisoned and fined £30 for opposing in town meeting the arbitrary measures of Sir Edmund Andros, Colonial Governor, in 1687; his companions were John Appleton, Thomas French, John Wise, Robert Kinsman, and William Goodhue.

62. WILLIAM ANDREWS,⁵ [37] (William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) of Ipswich, born Oct. 23, 1673. Intention of marriage with Elizabeth Curtis, July 27, 1710.
63. JOHN ANDREWS,⁵ [38] (William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) born Feb. 2, 1675. I suppose him to be identical with John Andrews, of Ipswich, administration of whose estate was granted his son John, Nov. 15, 1762. Inventory, Nov. 23, 1762. Amount, £335. 6. 3. Account of administration rendered Nov. 28, 1763. Estate Dr. to Ami Andrews, Jona Andrews, and widow Margaret Andrews by the decedents agreement. His mother was named Margaret and he had a brother Jonathan and nephew Ammi, son of his brother Solomon.

Division of his estate among his children, in 1764, who are named:

64. JOHN, eldest son.
65. JOSHUA.
66. CALEB.
67. JONATHAN.
68. EUNICE, int. of m. with Joseph Gidding, Sept. 16, 1737.
69. JAMES.

His estate included land in Manchester joinining to the line, in partnership with John Andrews and the heirs of James Andrews.

The son James was deceased at that time.

There was another John Andrews, of Chebocco, in Ipswich, yeoman, who made his will Nov. 20, 1751, proved April 16, 1753, in which is named his wife, Elizabeth, and children John and Jeremiah, who were to have the homestead and be executors.

Elizabeth, wife of Abijah Wheeler; Margaret, wife of James Perkins, married Dec. 14, 1734; Abigail, wife of Jeremiah Burnam, married Dec. 2, 1736; Dorcas, wife of James Ely, int. of m. March 13, 1741; Ruhamah, wife of Daniel Low, int. of m. Oct. 27, 1748.

- 70 JONATHAN ANDREWS,⁵ [47] (William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) The history of Scarboro, Maine, says he came from Ipswich, Massachusetts, in 1732, and that none of the name preceded him there. That he proved a valuable addition to the young settlement, which was much in need of just such men. Amos Andrews is mentioned there a little later and was an active citizen in town and church affairs. It is thought he must have been a son of this Jonathan, as the descendants of the two families claim a connection. The history of Ipswich records the dismissal from Second church, in Ipswich, of Jonathan Andrews, and wife Sarah, to go to Scarboro, and the church record at the latter place say they were admitted to First Congregational church there February 25, 1733. The Ipswich records contain the entry of int. m. of Jonathan Andrews and Sarah Smith, December 16, 1718. He was a blacksmith.

I am not certain about the parentage of this man, he may have been (Jonathan,⁶ [77], John,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹).

Their children all born at Scarboro:

- 71. AMOS.
- 72. JONATHAN.
- 73. NATHAN, baptised July 28, 1734.
- 74. SARAH, baptised May 13, 1739, married Silvanus Scott October 20, 1757.

75. SOLOMON ANDREWS,⁵ [48] (*William,*⁴ *John,*³ *John,*² *Robert,¹) Born at Ipswich, August 8, 1699. Int. of m. with Elizabeth Ingalls, October 27, 1726, both of Chelbacco, in Ipswich, says the record.

Isaac S. Andrews⁷ told the compiler of this work, about 1867, that he had seen and was acquainted with his grandfather, Solomon; had visited him and his uncles. He said that his grandfather was a farmer; that the maiden name of his wife was Harper; perhaps he may have been mistaken in that respect; or perhaps Solomon was twice married, and Harper may have been the name of the second wife. It will be borne in mind that Isaac S. Andrews was born and lived in Lovell, and never lived in Massachusetts, yet he was a man of powerful memory. He mentioned all of his uncles except Isaac, but said nothing particular about his uncle Solomon, who died in Massachusetts nearly thirty years before his birth. He said his uncle Ammi settled at Hillsboro, New Hampshire; his uncles Isaacher and Nehemiah, at Billerica, Massachusetts; that his uncle Stephen was a sea captain and had a residence at Blue Hill, Maine, where he died; and Edmund settled at Carlisle, Massachusetts, who he represented as being a very eccentric person. I have been unable to find any will made by Solomon Andrews⁵ or any account of his estate, or of his death. Perhaps he may have died during the troublesome times of the Revolution, and the records concerning him neglected. He had at least three sons in the war.

His children were:

- 76. SOLOMON, b. September 9, 1727.
- 77. ISAAC, b. January 9, 1729.
- 78. ELIZABETH, b. April 21, 1732. Int. of m. with Joseph Thompson, September 22, 1750.
- 79. STEPHEN, b. November 2, 1734.
- 80. AMMI, b. April 13, 1737.
- 81. NEHEMIAH, b. June 5, 1739.
- 82. EDMUND, b. January 9, 1741.
- 83. ISSACHER, b. December 25, 1744.
- 84. ABRAHAM, b. September 6, 1747.
- 85. RUAMMI, b. December 13, 1649.

SIXTH GENERATION.

86. JOHN ANDREWS,⁶ [64] (John,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) of Ipswich; int. of m. with Mary Burnam, December 19, 1741. Their children:
87. AMOS, b. May 31, 1743.
88. JOHN, b. April 20, 1745.

There was another of the same name shown by the records. John Andrews 4th and Mary Emerson; int. of m. March 13, 1741. John Andrews 4th, of Ipswich, mariner, his widow Mary, app^d adm^x April 20, 1753. Inventory £273. 14. 10. On the real estate was a blacksmith shop. Homestead about thirty-five acres. Account of Mary Andrews, the Adm,^x May 6, 1754, in which she charges for bringing up three young children fourteen months. Est. Dr. to Solomon & Jere. Andrews each £8. The widow was appointed, January 21, 1754, guardian of the following children under fourteen years of age: Stephen, Mary, John, Elizabeth, Sarah.

89. JOSHUA ANDREWS,⁶ [65] (John,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) of Ipswich, int. of m. with Prudence Marshall, February 6, 1745.
90. CALEB ANDREWS,⁶ [66] (John,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) of Ipswich, married Anna Marshall, December 20, 1750, and had a son.
91. CALEB, b. September 6, 1768.

93. SARAH.
94. JAMES.
95. ELIZABETH.
96. ISRAEL.
97. JACOB.
98. AMOS ANDREWS,⁶ [71] (*Jonathan,*⁵ *William,*⁴ *John,*³ *John,*² *Robert,*¹) of Scarboro, Maine, married Anne Seavey, of Scarboro, January 18, 1753, sister to Hannah, wife of Jonathan Andrews,⁶ of Scarboro.
99. JONATHAN ANDREWS,⁶ [72] (*Jonathan,*⁵ *William,*⁴ *John,*³ *John,*² *Robert,*¹) of Scarboro Maine, married Hannah Seavey, of Scarboro, March, 8, 1744; she died March 14, 1790. Their children:
100. STEPHEN, b. December 7, 1753.
101. ISAAC.
102. SOLOMON ANDREWS,⁶ Jr. [76] (*Solomon,*⁵ *William,*⁴ *John,*³ *John,*² *Robert,*¹) born at Ipswich, September 9, 1727; int. of m. with Ruth Low, November 28, 1748. He died intestate at Ipswich, and Ruth Andrews, his widow, was appointed Adm. of his estate, November 23, 1759, with Thomas Low, husbandman, and Timothy Bragg, Jr., husbandman, all of Ipswich, bondsmen, in the sum of £1,000.

(SIGNED,)

RUTH ANDREWS.

The judge called him Solomon Andrews, Jr., when he appointed appraisers of the estate, November 23, 1759, viz: John Baker, William Brown, and Tim. Bragg, Jr. all of Ipswich, who appraised the estate £11. 3. 10. and there was "allowed her for necessarys and charges of administration, the whole estate."

103. ISAAC ANDREWS,⁶ [77] (Solomon,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) born at Ipswich January 18, 1729, and removed to Hillsboro, New Hampshire, with his brother Ammi, where he settled and has descendants.

104. STEPHEN ANDREWS,⁶ [79] (Solomon,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) born at Ipswich, November 2 1734. He was a sea captain and resided at Blue Hill, Maine, where he died. He had children:

105. SAMUEL E.

106. JOHN.

There may have been others.

107. AMMI ANDREWS,⁶ [80] (Solomon,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) born at Ipswich April 13, 1737. Dr. John Goodell, of Hillsboro, New Hampshire, says he settled there probably as early as 1765 or 1766. He served through the whole of the Revolutionary war; was a member of Captain Baldwin's company at Bunker Hill; and extracted the bullet which caused the captain's death.

At one time he owned a large tract of land where Hillsboro now stands, but his last days were spent in poverty; his only support being a small pension. He died March 30, 1833, and his remains lie buried in the cemetery at Hillsboro.

Epitaph: In memory of Lieut. Ammi Andrews, who died M'ch 30, 1833, ÆT. 97 years. Lieut. A. distinguished himself as a brave and valiant officer in many perilous situations during the Revolutionary war and shared with Gen. Arnold the privations and dangers of the memorable campaign to Quebec in 1775. He married Molly Brown, date and place unknown, and had children:

- 108. MARY, born 1762, married Wm. Talbut, April 1, 1783.
- 109. BELLA, born 1767, died unmarried at Enfield New Hampshire, September, 1, 1841.
- 110. ISSACHER, born January 31, 1769, at Hillsboro.
- 111. EUNICE, born 1777, died unmarried at Enfield, New Hampshire, November 8, 1825.
- 112. LUCY, born 1781, died unmarried at Enfield, New Hampshire, October 5, 1819.
- 113. SALLY.
- 114. STEPHEN.
- 115. JABES.
- 116. IRA.

The wife and three daughters spent the last years of her life with the society of Shakers at Enfield, New Hampshire, where she died March 31, 1820.

- 117. CAPTAIN ABRAHAM ANDREWS,⁶ [84] (Solomon,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) born at Ipswich, Massachusetts, September 6, 1747.

He was a farmer and lived at Billerica, or Concord, Massachusetts, at the breaking out of the Revolutionary war.

His son, Isaac S. Andrews, in his lifetime spoke of his service in the war; of him being at Lexington and with Arnold's expedition to Quebec. It is supposed that he served several terms of enlistment.

The Massachusetts archives show that more than one Abraham Andrews served in that war.

Private Abraham Andrews in Captain Joshua Walker's company; Colonel David Green's 2d Reg^t Foot at Lexington, April 19, 1775.

Lieutenant Abraham Andrews served in Captain Joshua Walker's company; Colonel Samuel Denny's Reg^t from October 19, 1779, to November 23, 1779.

Adjutant Abraham Andrews 2d Reg^t Militia, from October 19, 1779, to November 23, 1779,

The last two are the same, evidently, and in the opinion of the writer refer to our Captain Abraham Andrews. There is a discrepancy between the above and what he told his family about his rank at Lexington. His son stated, positively, that he held the rank of captain in the Revolution, and not from his service in the Militia after the war. He was, however, the first captain in the Militia in Lovell.

His Grandson, William G. Andrews, now living at Exira, Audubon county. Iowa, recollects him and says he was a man little less than six feet high, with light complexion and blue eyes.

Another Grandson, Hon. Abraham Andrews Barker, now living at Ebensburg, Pennsylvania, writing of his grandfather says: "Captain Abraham Andrews, for whom I was named, lived, I think, in Billerica, as I have heard my mother talk so much about the place, and owned a farm; but just where it was—whether in Billerica or Concord—I cannot say. Mother told me he sold it and took it in Continental money, which proved worthless. Either mother or grandfather told me that when he left the army he took his pay for his services in the same money, and of course lost it all. That he paid twenty-five dollars for a breakfast. I can remember grandfather and see just how he looked, and remember somethings he told me; as he lived and died at my father's. I have forgotten how old I was. He died about 1823, which would make me about eight years old; I can remember well the day he died. Either him or my mother told me about him taking his gun and joining the men when the British soldiers started for Concord, and also of him being at Lexington and seeing the men that were killed and carried into the town house, but whether he had moved to Concord or still lived at Billerica I cannot say. After the war he had quite a family and was very poor, having sunk all he had in Continental money; and as he could hardly live in Massachusetts he, with others, went to Maine, then a part of Massachusetts; encouragement had been given, for cheaper lands, and that they could raise good crops. Grandfather had one of the free lots of land containing one hundred acres. I have heard my mother tell all about it, and of their hardships. Grandfather was about five feet ten inches tall, stout and heavily built, having large heavy shoulders; I think William's description of him is correct. He was a cooper and did considerable in that way. I remember going into the shed where he worked and he played the cooper's march for me, and sat down and told me stories."

Another grandson living at Denver, Colorado, George W. Andrews, Esq., writes thus of his ancestor: "As it may be of interest I relate some facts that I heard, when I was about eight years old, from my venerable grandfather, Abraham Andrews, on one of his annual visits at my father's home in Fryeburg, Maine. Grandfather's home, at that time, was in Lovell, Maine. His narrative of the event was about as follows: He said Major Pitcairn, a British officer, was sent out from Boston with five hundred 'Red Coats,' as he called them, to destroy some Colonial stores, some miles back of Lexington, which is about ten miles north-west from Boston, near where my grandfather lived.

The news of the approach of the forces spread through the country like wild fire. As they had to pass through Lexington—our Continental undisciplined soldiers hurriedly collected, a little after sunrise, on the village green, at Lexington, only about ninety in all, while Pitcairn was approaching with five hundred disciplined red coats. When the head of the British column reached the green Pitcairn's voice rang out in a commanding tone: 'Disperse, ye rebels!' and ordered his men to fire, which they did without halting. As soon as they had passed on our men gathered up eight dead Colonists and carried them into the meeting house and laid them out on the seats, where the blood ran across the floor. This was the first blood shed in the Revolutionary war. Pitcairn kept on his way to destroy the stores, but before reaching his place of destination, at about noon he halted at a tavern to rest and eat their rations.

The commanding officer and staff wishing to fare better, went into the Tavern, Pitcairn ordered the landlord to provide dinner for them. On his informing him that he could not, as he had not a single person besides himself about the house, he knocked the landlord down and then ordered him to set on the brandy. By one o'clock P. M. there had gathered on a rising piece of ground not far from this tavern, about three thousand Continentals all armed, some with muskets, almost every kind of a shot gun then known, also axes and pitchforks, others with clubs. Pitcairn seeing this great gathering so near gave up his further march to destroy the stores, and beat a hasty retreat, followed by the Continentals, more like a mob than regular soldiers. On all went back over the same road, through Lexington, the British red coats firing into the air as they ran. Grandfather said he saw many a twig fall from the tree tops, cut away by the bullets of the red coats. This retreat continued over the same village green where the eight Colonists were killed in the morning, and for two or three miles on toward Boston, until Pitcairn met reinforcements from Boston with two cannon; then said grandfather, it was our turn to retreat, which we did, as far as the village green, where we made a stand and fought until night, when the British forces left for Boston. My grandfather was lieutenant of his company, but as the captain was absent, he had command of the company at the time; and he told us, when the battle was at its height, a cannon ball from the enemy came tearing through the church building near where his company were fighting; and seeing one of his men not using his gun as he should, took it from him and leveled it on a red coat. This red coat fell! and soon another red coat fell across the first one, and directly a third red coat fell across the two, thus three red coats lay in one pile! At night the battle ended as stated.

As we have shown elsewhere, he was one of the first settlers of Lovell.

He married first, Esther, daughter of Hon. Isaac Stearns,* of Billerica, a soldier of the French and Indian wars, a legislator and magistrate, October 19, 1773. She was born April 13, 1740.

* See Note 5 Appendix.

A very complete genealogy of the Stearns family has been published by Dr. S. S. Stearns, of Washington, D. C.

Esther seems to have been a favorite name in that family. She died and lies buried at the cemetery at Lovell Center, by the side of her husband. Her gravestone is inscribed as follows:

Sacred
To The Memory of
MRS. ESTHER,
Consort of
CAPT. ABRAHAM ANDREWS,
who died
MARCH 1, 1799.
ÆT. 50.

He afterwards married Abigail, widow of Hubbard Carter, of Fryeburg, September 21, 1804. She married Carter at Bow, New Hampshire, September 22, 1772, her maiden name being Cross, daughter of Ralph Cross. Carter died September 22, 1803. He was a sergeant-major, ensign and lieutenant in the New Hampshire line, and was at Bunker Hill, Bennington, Saratoga and Yorktown. She had a son by first marriage named Isaac Carter, who died in infancy. There were no children by the last marriage. She also lies buried by the side of Captain Abraham, with a grave stone marked thus:

Sacred
To The Memory of ABIGAIL,
Relict of
CAPT. ABRAHAM ANDREWS, died
FEB. 27, 1843.
ÆT. 87. YRS.

He died suddenly of heart disease, at Lovell, and is buried as indicated. His headstone is as follows:

Sacred
To The Memory of
CAPT. ABRAHAM ANDREWS,
who died
JULY 13, 1823.
AET. 75.

The gravestones above described are all of black slate, about an inch in thickness.

His children were:

118. ABRAHAM, b. in Billerica, August 15, 1774.
119. BETSY, b. in Billerica, September 11, 1777.
120. ESTHER, b. in Billerica.
121. SALLY, b. in Billerica, September 18, 1785.
122. ISAAC STEARNS, b. in Lovell, August 13, 1788.
123. JACOB ABBOTT, b. in Lovell, August 22, 1790; died in Lovell, unmarried June, 1815.
124. POLLY, b. in Lovell, October 14, 1792; died in Lovell, January 1809, unmarried.

SEVENTH GENERATION.

125. JONATHAN ANDREWS,⁷ and wife Dorcas, of Scarborough. We are unable to place this family, but it is probably, related to the Andrews, of Scarborough. Perhaps he was son of Amos,⁶ Jonathan,⁵. His children:
126. HANNAH, born April 2, 1762.
127. ANNA, born December 13, 1774.
128. POLLY, born August 5, 1779.
129. JONATHAN, born January 31, 1782.
130. EZEKIEL, born October 21, 1784.
131. EBENEZER, born November 2, 1787.
132. SALLY, born May 26, 1790.
133. THOMAS, born January 13, 1793.
134. STEPHEN ANDREWS,⁷ [100] (Jonathan,⁶ Jonathan,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) born at Scarborough, December 7, 1753; died September 24, 1815; married Mary Holmes, of Scarborough, April 4, 1776. She was born January 9, 1757, and died March 16, 1842.

His children, all born in Scarborough were:

135. JONATHAN, born October 14, 1776, died April 4, 1778.
136. HANNAH, born January 23, 1778; died August 26, 1778.
137. STEPHEN, born October 29, 1779.
138. JOHN, born July 28, 1781, died March 4, 1783.
139. EPHRIAM, August 17, 1783, died November 1, 1854.
140. JAMES, born May 28, 1785, died July 1, 1813.
141. JOHN, born November 19, 1788.

- 142. SAMUEL, born February 5, 1790.
- 143. MARY, born February 5, 1792.
- 144. DANIEL, born July 4, 1794; married Sophia Parrott, of Cape Elizabeth, and removed west.
- 145. ANNA, born September 30, 1797, married Zacariah Harmon, of Scarboro, and had children;
- 146. ISAAC ANDREWS,⁷ [101] supposed to be a son of (Jonathan,⁶ Jonathan,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) married Elizabeth Warren, of Scarboro, December 25, 1797.

His children:

- 147. BENJAMIN, born July 9, 1798.
- 148. AMOS, born February 18, 1800.
- 149. ISAAC, born November 14, 1802.
- 150. STEPHEN, born August 22, 1808.
- 151. JAMES, born February 13, 1809.
- 152. ELIZABETH, born May 25, 1811.
- 153. ANNA, born October 24, 1813.
- 154. CAPTAIN SAMUEL E. ANDREWS,⁷ [105] (Stephen,⁶ Solomon,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹)
Born in Massachusetts about the year 1764.

He was a lieutenant in the Revolutionary war and served in Captain Hutchins' company; was on service with his uncle Captain Abraham Andrews, both of whom were in Arnold's expedition to Canada, up the Kennebec river, and through the woods of Maine, in the winter of 1775. After the war he seems to have been at Buxton, Maine; where he married his wife, Hannah E. Elder, and moved to Lovell at an early day, and settled near his uncle, Captain Abraham, at Sebatos mountain, in Lovell. He was at one time captain of the Lovell militia. He died at Lovell, January, 1822, aged 58 years. His widow for many years lived with their son Stephen on the old homestead and was blind for thirty years. She died there August 29, 1871, aged 102 years, 4 months, 16 days. Both are buried at the Lovell Center cemetery.

Their children, all born in Lovell, were:

- 155. ISSACHER, born November 23, 1788.
- 156. SARAH, born April 10, 1790; died in 1793.
- 157. AMOS, born July 12, 1791.
- 158. CATHARINE, born July 10, 1793.
- 159. RUTH, born March 4, 1795.
- 160. GIBEON E. born March 26, 1796.
- 161. LYDIA, born March 19, 1798; died September 1, 1802.
- 162. ROXANA, born March 16, 1800.
- 163. JOHN, born March 19, 1802, died October 7, 1802.
- 164. STEPHEN, born August 3, 1803.
- 165. NATHAN, born July 3, 1805.
- 166. ABEL, born April 25, 1807.
- 167. MOSES, born November 14, 1808.

- 168. JOHN ANDREWS,⁷ [106] (Stephen,⁶ Solomon,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ John,² Robert,¹) He once lived at Portland; but separated from his family, and came to Lovell, where he died about 1832.

His children were:

- 169. EZRA, married and had children. Lived in Portland.
- 170. ALBERT H.

bering business at Lovell Center. After the death of his wife he removed to a farm less than a mile east of Lovell Center, where Granville Martin now lives. In 1865, after the death of his last wife he removed, with the family of his son Jacob, to Exira, Iowa, where he died; he was a man of remarkable memory and, up to the time of his death, was able to give events, names and dates with marvelous accuracy. In Lovell he was best known by the name of "Uncle Isaac," and will be remembered by his peculiar manner of speech, which was very slow, earnest and delivered in a sing-song tone. There are many funny stories told of his droll wit and aptness in repartee; the first load of goods brought to Lovell for merchandise was hauled by him from Portland for "Squire" Stephen Heald, of Lovell village; he had a glass decanter, a very useful vessel in its time, brought in that load of goods, now in the possession of his grandson, Isaac S. Andrews, of Atlantic, Iowa. We have elsewhere given credit for information received from him in this work; he died December 31, 1868, and is buried at Exira, Iowa; his wife, Sally, died December 12, 1840, aged 47 years.

His children, all by first wife, born in Lovell, were:

- 226. WILLIAM GEORGE, born September 29, 1816.
- 227. JACOB, born February 24, 1820.
- 228. SARAH, born November 2, 1824.

Ayer, February 19, 1846, by S. G. Scribner, Esq.; he was a farmer and wheelwright, and resided for many years in Naples, Maine.

In 1863 they removed to Prescott, Wisconsin; in October, 1865, to Exira, Iowa, where he engaged in farming and carpenter work; he died in Cass county, Iowa, where he is buried, June 4, 1871. Before his marriage he was engaged, three years, in whale fishery, visiting almost the entire coast of America, the islands of the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian Oceans; many of the places visited were then inhabited by savages and cannibals; he suffered numerous perils and hardships and narrowly escaped the loss of his life on several occasions from encounters with whales, and other startling events, incident to his travels and employment; he was a man of rare intelligence and courage, a kind, noble gentleman, and died beloved and mourned by all who knew him; it can be truthfully said of him that he had no enemies, during his eventful life which, no doubt, was shortened by disabilities incurred during his service at sea life. She married second, James Holliday, Esq., at Exira, Iowa, October 25, 1873; he was born at West Liberty, Virginia, April 16, 1821; descended from New England people; his grandfather was a revolutionary soldier, for which service he received a pension from the government; his father, William Holliday, resided in Marshall county, Virginia; was twice married; his second wife was Mary Campbell, a native of Connecticut; by this marriage there were three sons and a daughter, one of which was his brother, Richard C., who was a prominent lawyer and resided and died at Moundsville, West Virginia; his other brother, William, was a merchant. Mr. Holliday was first married to Mary Jane Whittingham, in 1841, by whom he had five children: George W., James, Amanda, Mary E., and Estelle. He was appointed postmaster at Moundsville, Virginia, in 1861, and during the war of the rebellion was a staunch Union man, rendering valuable service to his country during that dangerous period in intercepting rebel communications sent through the United States mail, at the risk of his life, for which he received the special thanks from the Postmaster General and Government Officials; he was a strong anti-slavery man and was actively engaged in advocating the separation of West Virginia from the Old State, and in the organization of the New State, and in the adoption of its Constitution and its admission as a free State into the Union. He removed to Henry county, Iowa, in 1866; thence to Polk county, Iowa, in 1868, where his first wife died; and to Guthrie county in 1869; he removed to Audubon county, Iowa, in 1870. In his younger days he was a successful school teacher, in Virginia, which profession he followed both in Guthrie and Audubon counties for several years. He was Justice of the Peace, at Exira, Iowa, several years; and has held the office of Coroner of Audubon county two years; he has now retired from active business.

She has no children.

In 1854 he spent six months at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas; in 1859 he was elected to the Senate in Minnesota; in 1860 he was Presidential Elector on the Douglas Democrat ticket. In 1861 he recruited some men for the 1st Regiment of Minnesota Volunteers, and was mustered into the United States service as private, at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, October 11, 1861; and was commissioned Captain of Company I, 3d Regiment Minnesota Infantry Volunteers, November 4, 1861. The regiment was assigned to duty in Kentucky and Tennessee, and was in the expedition to Pikesville under General Dumont, June 11, 1862; he was detailed Provost Marshal of the command; he was captured in an engagement at Murfreesboro, Tennessee, July 13, 1862; by the rebel General Forrest, and confined at Madison, Georgia, and in Libby Prison. On December 10, 1862, he was promoted Lieutenant Colonel of his regiment. In March, 1863, he was detailed president of a military commission at Columbus, Tennessee. On May 5, 1863, he embarked for Vicksburg; May 8, he bivouaced at Haines' Bluff, and his regiment was assigned to Kimball's Division; July 16, he assumed command of his regiment; July 24, he embarked for Helena, and arrived there on July 26, where he was mustered as Colonel of his regiment; August 13, he marched for Little Rock in command of his regiment; on September 11, 1863, he took command of the post at Little Rock, on which duty he remained eight months, having a brigade command, comprising the 3d Minnesota, 43d Illinois and 7th Missouri Cavalry. His regiment re-enlisted as veterans in January, 1864. His nomination as Brigadier General was sent to the United States Senate on the same date. On April 1, 1864, while in charge of a scouting party of about 200 near Augusta, Arkansas, he engaged Confederate General McRae, with about 600 men, defeating them, losing thirty killed and wounded. On April 19, 1864, he repeated the expedition up the White River; on April 26, he received a commission as Brigadier General of United States Volunteers, dated April 10, 1864, to rank from January 5, 1865; and on May 19, 1864, he assumed command of the Second Brigade, Second Division, Seventh Corps, with headquarters at Little Rock, Arkansas. On June 16, he succeeded General West in the command of Second Division of the Seventh Corps, headquarters at Little Rock; and on July 7, assumed command at Duvall's Bluff, the base of supplies for General Steele's army, department of Arkansas, and continued same until December 27, 1864. On January 7, 1865, at Morganzia, Louisiana, he took command of the Third Brigade Reserve Corps, military division of west Mississippi, consisting of nine regiments; on January 26, he reported with part of his command to General Granger, at East Pascagoula, Mississippi, and went into camp, January 27, at Barrancas near Pensacola, Florida; here the regiments and batteries began to arrive to compose the Second and Third Brigades of the Second Division, Thirteenth Corps, designed for his command. On March 4, 1865, he assumed command of the Second Division, Thirteenth Corps; and on March 9, was commissioned Major General of Volunteers, by brevet; his division was composed of the following troops: Second Brigade; 24th and 26th Indiana, and the 76th and 97th Illinois; the Third; of the 83d and 114th Ohio, 37th Illinois, and 20th and 34th

Iowa, also the 2d Connecticut, and 15th Massachusetts Batteries; the whole comprising over 5,000 effective men.

On March 20th he moved out from Pensacola with General Steele's column toward Pollard, Alabama, to co-operate with General Canby's movement along the east shore of Mobile Bay, and on March 26, he entered Pollard with one brigade. Arriving before the rebel works, at Blakely, the morning of April 2d, his division formed on the left, Hawkin's division completing the investment. The enemy's line of earthworks was three miles long, the ends resting on Tensas River. Andrews was in the center with a front of about three-fourths of a mile, along which he built three lines of rifle pits, with Veach's division immediately on his left. Siege operations continued about seven days. In the assault, about sundown on April 9th, his two brigades, in a few minutes, carried the enemy's breastworks, in their front, capturing a number of flags, twelve guns and between 1,300 and 1,400 prisoners including a division General and seventy-one other commissioned officers. The ground in front contained ravines with fallen timber, and in front of the redoubts were three lines of abatis. His loss was thirty killed and 200 wounded, some mortally.

On April 27, with General Steele, he moved up the Alabama River and was left with one brigade, in command of Selma, and so continued until May 12th, when his force returned and went into camp near Mobile. On quitting Selma he received the following voluntary communication from Judge Byrd, a distinguished citizen of Alabama:

SELMA, MAY 12, 1865.

SIR:—I desire to express in a more formal and enduring manner than I have done my appreciation of your kindness to me and my family, and as you are about to leave Selma, perhaps forever, to say to you that, so far as I am informed, our citizens appreciate your firmness, courtesy and integrity. While you have been true to your government you have shown us all the consideration and attention of fellow citizens, and I am satisfied that if a similar course is pursued by the authorities of our country the people of the South will be more beneficently and effectively restored to the Union and the Republic than they have been by its victorious armies. Let me assure you, at parting, of my high regard and consideration, and indulge the hope that you will ever remember your stay here among the pleasant memories of the past.

Very truly, your obedient servant,

W. M. BYRD.

GENERAL C. C. ANDREWS,

Commanding, Selma, Alabama.

On May 27th, he took command of the district of Mobile; on July 4 he embarked for Texas and took command of the district of Houston on July 8. By order he accompanied provisioned Gov. A. J. Hamilton to the State Capital at Austin, and was present at his reinstatement in authority. He was relieved from duty, at Houston, August 14, 1865, and mustered out of service to take effect January 15, 1866. During nearly four years of active service he was not off duty, on any account, except when a prisoner of war, over ten days in all. In the presidential canvass of 1888, he issued an able campaign paper on "Administrative Reform," which received extensive notice from the press throughout the entire country. He has been recently engaged in the compilation of the official Military History of Minnesota.

APPENDIX.

NOTE 1. BURNHAM.

We have seen elsewhere in this work that John, Thomas and Robert Burnham, settled at Ipswich, Massachusetts, with their uncle, Robert Andrews, in 1635; they were sons of his sister, Mary, wife of Robert Burnham. The descendants of these men appear to have been numerous, and we find the name in the records of Iprwich, frequently, down to the time of the Revolutionary period.

The Winthrop and Burnham house was built by John Winthrop, Jr., in 1633. It was the home of his family, and the birthplace of some of his children; and to this home he brought Elizabeth Reade Winthrop, his second bride. The Burnhams possessed the house after the Winthrops migrated to Connecticut, and for 200 years it was their homestead, always retaining the name of "Governor's House."

JOHN BURNHAM¹ was a soldier in the war against the Pequot Indians, for which service he received a grant from the town of eight acres of land, in 1639. He subscribed to the compensation of Major Denison in 1648. He sold to Anthony Potter June 1, 1648, a house lot, late of Humphrey Griffin, situated near the water mill; also a house lot containing three acres, lying next the house of Sergeant Jacob Burnham. He came into full communion with the Church August 12, 1674.

JOHN BURNHAM,² son of John,¹ married Elizabeth Wells, June 9, 1669. He was a tything man in 1677 and 1695. In his will, dated December 31, 1703, proved January 24, 1704, he is called "Senior." It mentions his wife, Elizabeth.

JOHN, Eldest son, (born April 8, 1671.)

NOTE 5—STEARNS.

A genealogy of the Stearns family has been compiled by Dr. Solomon Sergeant Stearns, of Washington, D. C., showing the progenitors of the members of the Stearns family, mentioned in this work. Captain Abraham Andrews,⁶ [117] married Esther Stearns, daughter of Honorable Isaac Stearns, of Billerica, Massachusetts. Several of the descendants of her brother, Benjamin Stearns, and of her uncle, John Stearns, have intermarried with this branch of the Andrews family. It will be of interest to members of this branch of the family to have a convenient reference of the line of their ancestors, which is here given:

First Generation.

1. ISAAC STEARNS and wife Mary. It is supposed they came from the Parish of Nayland, Suffolk, England. It is certain they came with Governor Winthrop, in 1630, and it is claimed there is evidence that they came in the same ship with Governor Winthrop and Sir Richard Saltonstall. They settled at Watertown, Massachusetts.

Their children were:

2. MARY, born in England about December, 1625.

3. HANNAH, born in England about September, 1628.

4. JOHN, (see Second Generation.)

5. ISAAC, born January 6, 1632-3.

6. SARAH, born September 22, 1635.
7. SAMUEL, born April 24, 1638.
8. ELIZABETH.
9. ABIGAIL.

Second Generation.

10. JOHN STEARNS,² [4] probably born in England early in the year 1630; he was one of the first settlers of Billerica, Massachusetts; was Town Clerk there two years; in 1658 he was Constable, and was twice married; first, to Sarah, daughter of Isaac and Sarah Mixer, of Watertown; she died, June 14, 1656, leaving only one child: and he married Mary, daughter of Thomas and Mary Lothrop, of Barnstable, Massachusetts, in December, 1656. He died, March 5, 1668-9.

His children were:

11. JOHN, child by first wife, (see Third Generation.)
12. ISAAC, born April 17, 1658; died October 9, 1659.
13. SAMUEL, born September 3, 1659; died 1735.
14. ISAAC, born December 23, 1661; died 1739.
15. NATHANIEL, born November 30, 1663; died young.
16. THOMAS, born December 6, 1665; d. February 9, 1696-7.

Third Generation.

17. CAPTAIN JOHN STEARNS,³ [11] born May 1654, the first birth recorded in Billerica. He was twice married, first to Elizabeth, daughter of John and Mary (Warren) Bigelow, who was born June 18, 1657; she died April 18, 1694, and he married April 22, 1696, Joanna, widow of Jacob Parker, and daughter of Thomas Call, Jr. Farmer says in his History of Billerica: "In this town Captain John Stearns passed his days, and died October 26, 1728, at the age of 74 years. His long continuance in several offices, of a Civil and Military kind, affords a proof of the confidence reposed in him by his fellow citizens."

His children were:

18. ELIZABETH, born September 23, 1677.
19. JOHN, born January 22, 1679-80; died April 4.

20. SARAH, born March 21, 1681-2.
21. MARY, born July 23, 1684.
22. JOHN, (see Fourth Generation.)
23. ISAAC, born May 1, 1689; died in 1711.
24. ABIGAIL, born August 22, 1691.
25. SAMUEL, born January 8, 1693-4.
26. JOANNA, born June 24, 1697; by second wife.

Fourth Generation.

27. JOHN STEARNS,⁴ [22] born in Billerica, Massachusetts, November 26, 1686; married Esther, daughter of Captain Edward Johnson, of Woburn, Massachusetts, who was son of William Johnson, of Woburn, and grandson of Captain Edward Johnson, of Woburn, author of the History of New England, entitled, "Wonder-Working Providence of Sion's Savior in New England." He died, August 2, 1776.

His children were:

- 54. JOHN, born September 18, 1765; a farmer of Billerica, —eight children—the father of Onslow Stearns, Governor of New Hampshire, in 1869-1871. He was accidentally killed by the cars, November 5, 1836, at Woburn, Massachusetts.
- 55. ELIZABETH, born September, 1767; died in 1778.
- 56. OBED, born October 2, 1770; died in 1800; he was a physician and resided in Hampton, New Hampshire.

57. CAPTAIN EDWARD STEARNS,⁵ [33] born May 9, 1726; married, in 1755, Lucy, daughter of Thomas and Rachel (Stearns) Wyman, and resided in Billerica and Bedford, Massachusetts. He was in the fight at Concord, in 1775, and upon the death of Captain Wilson, his brother-in-law, who was shot by the British, the command of the Bedford Militia devolved upon him. He had ten children and many descendants.

58. REVEREND JOSIAH STEARNS,⁵ [35] born January 20, 1731-2; graduated from Harvard College in 1751; ordained, at Epping, New Hampshire, March 8, 1758; where he died of cancer, July 25, 1788. So intimate was his knowledge of the Bible that he could readily cite the chapter and verse where any scripture text could be found. He was an ardent friend of liberty. Some of his sons were in the field during a greater part of the Revolutionary contest, and he sacrificed most of his worldly interest in support of the American cause. He was a member of the convention, in Exeter, in which he regarded himself as fully committed to the risk of his personal safety. Returning from the convention he called his children around him, told them of the stand he had taken, and added: "If the cause shall prevail, it will be a great benefit to the country; but if it shall fail, your poor old father's head will soon be a button for a halter." He first married Sarah, daughter of Uriah and Elizabeth (Mitchell) Abbott, of Andover; married second, Sarah, daughter of Reverend Samuel Ruggles, of Billerica. He had six sons and six daughters.

59. TIMOTHY STEARNS,⁵ [37] born August 15, 1737. He belonged to Captain Thomas Flint's Company, at Lake George, in 1757.

MISCELLANEOUS.

This work has given all the descendants of Robert Andrews,¹ of the name of Andrews, down to the fourth generation. Since that period it has been impossible, up to this time, to obtain and arrange all branches of the family in full, up to date; the necessary information has not been obtainable. As others, in the future, may desire to complete their family records, it is thought best to preserve, at this time, such extracts from the old records as will be of service for that purpose. A large mass of information has been obtained from the records of Salem and Ipswich, Massachusetts, which will be of value in completing the Genealogy, but so mingled with the records of other families, of the name, who were early settlers of that locality, that the compilers has been unable to arrange them with certainty. There were settlers at Ipswich, of the name of Andrews, other than Robert Andrews,¹ and his descendants, and it has been a difficult task to identify them with certainty. That which was very doubtful has been omitted from the Genealogy proper. Some of the data to be hereafter given, no doubt, refers to descendants of Robert Andrews,¹ and the search for further information concerning the family history will be rewarded by following out the information here given:

John Andrews, of Ipswich, was a soldier in the war against the Pequot Indians, in 1639, and had eight acres of land granted to him by the town for his services. With the title of "Senior" he subscribed to the allowance of Major Denison for his military services, in 1648. Perhaps he was a brother to Robert,¹ but I have found no positive proof of the fact.

John Andrews, and wife Jane, of Ipswich, sold land in that place to John Choate, September 27, 1660.

John Andrews, Senior, and wife Jane, of Ipswich, sold land in that place to Sergt Thomas Burnham, March 19, 1673.

John Andrews, carpenter, of Ipswich, bought land in that place of Samuel Symonds, June 16, 1674. This may have been Lieut. John,³ [29].

John Andrews, Senior, of Chebacco, bought land of Richard Lee, November 20, 1673.

John Andrews, of Ipswich, bought land in that place of Robert Cross, October 29, 1675.

John Andrews, Senior, of Ipswich, deeds land in that place to Henry Bennett, January 27, 1675.

John Andrews, Senior, of Ipswich, bought land of Robert Cross, Jr., September 21, 1676.

John Andrews, Senior, carpenter, of Ipswich, bought land there of John Cogswell, June 16, 1678.

John Andrews, of Lynn, sold to Richard Hubbard, of Ipswich, land in Ipswich, October 12, 1660.

Robert Andrews, of Topsfield, September 17, 1658.

Robert Andrews, of Topsfield, bought land in Rowley, of William Wild, of Ipswich, July 22, 1661.

Robert Andrews, of Rowley, bought land in that place, of John Lambert, July, 1661.

shouldn't this be Robert?

Grace Andrews, widow, of Rowley, bought of John Gould, of Topsfield, land in the latter place, on south side of Ipswich river, February 7, 1673.

Thomas Andrews, of Rowley, bought of Robert Smith, of same place, land, March 20, 1673-4.

AUDUBON, IOWA, September 20, 1893.

I am writing a history of the Hamlin or Hamblen family. The name is variously written by the different branches:—Hamlin, Hamlen, Hamblen, Hamblin, Hamelin, Hamline, Hamlyn, and otherwise. The spelling is not very material.

From the records, so far as obtained, the family in the United States seem to have descended from James Hamblen, who settled in Barnstable, Mass., in 1639, and from whom I descend; and from Capt. Giles Hamlin, who settled in Middleton, Conn., in 1650. The descendants of both are numerous, and are found in almost every state and territory. I have found branches of the Hamlin and Hamblen family which were in New Jersey, Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee prior to 1800; where they came from, I have not yet learned; but from present indications, I should judge they came from the Massachusetts and Connecticut settlers.

Louis Hamelin came from France and settled in Canada in 1650, and has descendante, some of whom may have come into the United States.

All of the name are of Norman extraction, some came from there with William the Conqueror to England, and were at the battle of Hastings, 1066, of this there is positive record.

I now have the names of nearly 1500 descendants of James Hamblen, the settler in Barnstable, 1639; and desire all the family records that I can obtain to complete the history and make it as comprehensive as possible. There are many more of the family whose records I have not obtained. Most people can give their family record back to their grandparents, accurately, and frequently can go back earlier.

Will you kindly furnish me on the enclosed forms, your family record, and those of your father and grandfather. If you can give it still further back please do so. Also, if you have brothers, sisters, uncles, aunts, cousins or other relatives of the Hamlin family please give me their names and address, that I may obtain their family records. In each case after answering all questions carefully, as to dates, etc., give a sketch of the life of the person and the family history, which will enable me to place the individual and determine the relationship to what I already have.

If more blanks are required I will gladly furnish them. Write plain and distinct to avoid mistakes.

Trusting that you will be interested in the subject, I shall hope to have a reply soon with your family records.

Address:

H. F. ANDREWS,
Audubon, Iowa.
